General Strike Feared as Labor Plans to Balk French Premier

Leaders Rally Forces to Retain 40-Hour Week

READY FOR ACTION

Situation Results From Plan to Lengthen Work Periods

Paris—(AP)—French labor leaders rallied their forces today to fight the Daladier government for retention of the 40-hour week, and labor circles foresaw the possibility of a general strike.

The general confederation of labor, which lists 5,000,000 members, and most other unions ordered their members to be ready for action.

Foremost in the offensive were waterfront unions, fighting government efforts to force Marseille stevedores to unload perishables during the weekend and thereby exceed their 40-hour work period.

See "Grave Decision"

The federation of port workers' unions said "grave decisions" would be made soon unless extra pay for overtime was granted the Marseille members, and labor circles said this was a threat of a strike in all French ports.

The situation evolved from Premier Daladier's proposal Sunday night to increase working periods to speed national defense and industrial output because of the uncertain international situation.

The minister of public works and the minister of labor, both members of the socialist union party, resigned but quickly were replaced by Anatole deMonzie and Charles Pomaret, members of the same small party, a relatively conservative off shoot of the main socialist party.

This did not ease opposition to Daladier's plan, however, socialist and communist sources said. They asserted there was dissatisfaction even among the premier's own radical socialist party, centrally-placed between the liberal left and the conservative right.

Wagner Act May Undergo Changes

Roosevelt to Confer With Representatives of Labor, Employers

Hyde Park, —(AP)— President Roosevelt said today that representatives of labor, employers and the National Labor Relations board probably would be called into consultation this fall on possible changes in the Wagner labor act.

The president said he had agreed with President William Green of the American Federation of Labor last week that the law should be clarified, but that there had been absolutely no discussion as to what specific changes might be made.

A similar announcement was made by Green after his talk with the president.

Mr. Roosevelt, talking with reporters at a press conference, said in response to questions that it would be necessary to get the views of quite a number of persons before determining what clarifications congress should be asked to make in the law.

Youths Pledged Against 'Any War of Aggression'

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—(AP)—Youthful representatives of 57 nations pledged themselves at the closing session of the second World Youth congress today to "do all in our power to guarantee that youth of our countries never participate in any war of aggression."

Individuals of each country represented at the conclave signed a pact condemning war and calling for the bringing of "pressure upon our respective authorities to prevent aggression."

Not Criticism; Just a Brainstorm

That phases of insanity can be classified seems reasonable, if anything about insanity can be reasonable. There are schizophrencies, paranoics, and so on. But what seems queer is that a defendant can be a lunatic during the minute it takes to commit a crime and walk out perfectly sane and safe immediately after acquittal on the ground of insanity. And the experts for the State seem always on the losing end. Well, anyway, it is noteworthy that proof of perfect mental balance is furnished by consistent use of The Post-Crescent classified Want-ads. This one because of the sale it made was good testimony:

GAS RANGE — Black and white enamel. $5.00 Inner spring mattress $3.00. Tel. 4169.

Had about 12 or 14 calls and sold gas range.

LEADERS AND STARS OF SOTAL CHAMPIONS

Heavy Storm Hits Southern Part of State Early Today

Train Derailed, Trees, Power Lines, and Cars are Damaged

Appleton and vicinity basked today in a warm August sun, unaffected by the violent wind and rainstorm that early this morning swept the southern part of the state. Rain fell in the city early today but measured only .14 of an inch.

The Associated Press reported that Joseph Burkhart, Altoona, Wis. the engineer, was injured and 40 passengers shaken up when a passenger train of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad jumped the tracks during the storm near Neillsville early today.

Rain washed out the roadbed at Sydney, about eight miles from Neillsville, road officials said, and the rails buckled. The engine tipped over on its side but the passenger car, baggage car and pullman remained upright.

Several passengers crawled out through windows. Others were helped out through the doors. None was injured. Burkhart suffered a cut head but was not seriously hurt.

Crops Damaged

The storm also caused considerable damage to crops and farm buildings in the Neillsville vicinity. Observers reported 2½ inches of rain fell from 11 o'clock last night until shortly before daybreak.

Trees, power and communication lines, automobiles and some farm crops were damaged in Madison and surrounding territory.

Damage reports came from Beaver Dam, Portage, Richland Center and Dodgeville. The Madison de-

Contents of Hull Note To Mexico Undisclosed

Washington — (AP)—Another state department note went to Mexico City today about Mexico's expropriation of an estimated 1,000,000 acres of American-owned farm land.

Secretary Hull sent it by messenger to Mexican Ambassador Francisco Najera last night. The two men earlier had discussed the situation in an hour's conference.

The text will be released here and in Mexico City Friday morning.

Former State Attorney Dies at Tarpon Springs

Madison —(AP)— H. H. Morgan, former United States district attorney for western Wisconsin, died of heart disease yesterday at Tarpon Springs, Fla., it was learned here. Funeral services will be held here Friday. He was county judge at Tarpon Springs at the time of his death.

'Sales Mean Jobs' More Than a Catchy Phrase; It's a Confirmed Fact

"Sales Mean Jobs," besides being the slogan of a crusade now being carried through in Appleton and vicinity, is a statement of fact.

Sales do mean jobs and the more sales that are made the more jobs that become available. When there is more work, there is more purchasing power to shove sales still higher, create more jobs, and so on. It is a statement of fact, clear and concise.

Anyone who might be called on would testify to the truth of the crusade's cry, "Sales Mean Jobs." And men already have been called on to give that testimony and have given it, willingly and eagerly.

The crusade which is fast taking the country by storm becoming one of the most singular movements in our economic history has enlisted the heads and the hearts of some of our most able business and industrial leaders. From Maine to Texas, the cry has been taken up and from Maine to Texas those men have stepped forward and re-echoed the cry.

What They Said

Let's examine excerpts taken from the speeches of experienced business and industrial executives who appeared at "Sales Mean Jobs" rallies:

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway: "If selling effort were abolished overnight, our transportation system would fall to pieces . . . Railroad men know, possibly better than any other group of men, that their security and well-being are dependent upon people selling things to one another — that sales means jobs."

H. W. Story, vice president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee: "The real answer to economic recovery lies in the state of mind of the consuming public. When people become tired of being uncertain (and they always do) they start a buying movement which, in turn, starts the machinery of prosperity. There is no sound reason for believing the public mind cannot be changed tomorrow. How can this be done? Only through the concerted efforts of the individuals comprising all sales organizations throughout the United States."

Refreshing and Hopeful

Rev. Raphael C. McCarthy, S. J., president of Marquette university: "It is refreshing and hopeful to see business men trying to solve business problems, for these men have the experience and the hard common sense to face facts and to adopt appropriate and promising remedies."

Merle Thorpe, editor of "Nation's Business": "Selling has cracked the hard nut of under-consumption many a time in the United States. And we can do it again. There are millions eager for more and better food, for warmer clothing, more comfortable shelter. . . . Selling will do the job. But the salesmen cannot work alone. . . . The salesmen of America have been the people who are responsible for every single wealth-producing enterprise that makes for the continuous employment of men."

A railroad president, a manufacturer, a college president, and an editor are expressing themselves on the sound economic fact contained in the crusade's battle cry. It is not a crusade built on fancy and fantastic theory, with nebulous and unattainable objectives. It is as sensible as going to bed when the hour is late and you're sleepy.

UAWA Troubles Carried to Lewis

Rival Union Factions are Represented at Washington

Detroit—(AP)—The troubles of the United Auto Workers union were carried to CIO chieftain John L. Lewis today in Washington where all spheres of influence in the UAWA were represented.

The expelled vice presidents — Richard T. Frankensteen, Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall — were there to advocate appointment of a CIO dictator for the big auto union. With them was Walter Wells, another vice president, who is under suspension.

Representing President Homer Martin was R. J. Thomas, only remaining active vice president. His position was "hands off" the UAWA an autonomous union although it is affiliated with CIO.

Oppose Convention

Walter Reuther, president of the big west side Detroit local and an anti-Martin member of the executive board in good standing, remained at home but said he would send some recommendations to Lewis. William Marshall, president of the Chrysler Local No. 7, powerful east side Detroit local, was in Washington, however, probably as a Reuther spokesman.

The Reuther-Marshall camp apparently is opposed to a special or rump convention but would accept a CIO dictatorship.

Marshall said recently he believed the Chrysler and west side locals could block such conventions.

Pleasant Weather Is Expected for Dollar Day in Appleton Thursday

Weather reports indicated today that shoppers of Appleton and vicinity can look forward to sunshine and blue skies for their invasion of stores Thursday, which will be celebrated as Dollar day by more than 60 merchants of the city.

The weather won't be any better than the bargains, however, and merchants have promised that shoppers will find an unprecedented array of good, up-to-date merchandise at drastically reduced prices.

The merchants are making a concerted effort to establish Thursday's Dollar day as one of the best ever held in the city. New stock will be introduced to the crowds that will jam the business section from the time the stores open in the morning to late afternoon.

High quality articles of immediate and practical usability, representing every conceivable need for the household and the person, will be greatly reduced to meet the popular $1 price of the day.

Stores participating in Dollar day will be designated with signs, and clerks will wear Dollar day buttons. C. E. MacKay is chairman for the event, which is under the sponsorship of the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

Complete information on Thursday's bargains will be carried in the Post-Crescent. It is suggested that shoppers visit as many stores as possible during Dollar day, for outstanding bargains will be offered in all.

Goods featured at Thursday's buying event will be suited to both summer and fall use, merchants have assured shoppers. Special shipments have been received by Appleton merchants for the Dollar day crowds.

Coroner Blames Jail Heads for Deaths of 4 Men

Says 'Hunger - Striking' Prisoners Victims of Suffocation

MENTIONS NO NAMES

Declares He'll Interview Every Inmate, if Necessary

Philadelphia —(AP)— Autopsies today revealed suffocation caused the deaths of four "hunger-striking" inmates of the Philadelphia county prison.

Coroner Charles H. Hersch, blaming officials for the deaths, said he would make microscopic examinations "to determine whether the suffocation was induced by water, vapor, gas or any other cause."

As autopsies began, the coroner said: "No matter what they show, the responsibility lies with officers of the prison."

He did not name the officials to whom he referred.

Hersch assumed charge of the investigation. He said he was "not satisfied with any of the stories I have heard."

Deputy Coroner Vincent Moranz said he and Hersch would interview prisoners privately and "if necessary we will interview the entire prison population."

A 110-year-old law and a 129-year-old supreme court decision were cited by Hersch as authorities for him to direct the investigation.

"Had No Steam

"There is no question but that these men met their death by scalding," he said. "Their hands were shriveled, indicating immersion in hot water or steam."

Warden William B. Mills said he could not contradict the coroner but "can't see how that could have taken place."

"We certainly used no steam or hot water on the men," he said, "and there are no steam or hot water pipes in the building in which they were confined."

Charles I. Engard, state secretary of welfare, sent two special investigators to the institution at Holmesburg with orders to "get to the bottom" of the hunger strike which resulted in the four being placed in punishment cells where their bodies were found yesterday.

Refused To Eat

They were among more than 600 prisoners who had refused to eat in protest against a "monotonous" diet of hamburger and spaghetti. Discovery of the bodies came after a night during which, Warden William B. Mills said, some 20 convicts in the punishment cells had been fighting among themselves.

Dr. Morton Crane, the coroner's physician, declared the men had died violently.

"I am of the opinion that scalding water somehow got into their cells," he said. "All four exhibited the symptoms of nasal congestion that is typical of death by gas, steam or hot water.

"There were also bruises and abrasions—and by abrasions I mean bruises where the skin is ripped off, and they still showed clots of blood. That would indicate clearly to me that they were beaten before being scalded to death."

Separate Investigation

Warden Mills began a separate investigation, along with city and county officials.

Judge Harry S. McDevitt of the common pleas court, who had sought to aid in settling the hunger strike, said he was told the prisoners broke steam pipes in their cells to use them for weapons, thus permitting steam to drive into the cells.

The four prisoners occupied adjoining cells. With them were two others, both unharmed. Investigators offered no explanation of how they escaped.

Mill Receives Permit To Rebuild Timber Dam

Madison —(AP)— The public service commission authorized the Wausau Paper Mills company today to use its rebuilt timber crib dam for two years and ordered that plans for a concrete dam be filed before Dec. 16, 1938.

The company's Brokaw dam collapsed May 29 and officials asked permission to rebuild an older dam that has not been used.

"Rebuilding was the purpose of obtaining some power for the mill, a pond for floating logs to the mill, and to facilitate reopening of the paper mill which had discontinued operations following the collapse of the concrete dam," the commission said.

"The mill is capable of producing 65 tons of sulphide bond paper a day. Three hundred employes and their families are directly dependent upon the mill's continued operation."

Insurgent Offensive Blocked on Key Front

Hendaye, France — (At the Spanish Frontier) —(AP)— A general insurgent offensive appeared blocked today on the key sector of the Ebro front although in central Spain, along the Tagus river, government troops were giving ground.

Observers considered the fighting on the two fronts perhaps the heaviest in the 25-months-old civil war, with artillery, tanks and airplanes used by both sides on a scale scarcely approached before.

The main force of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's campaign broke against hilltop positions held by the Barcelona militiamen in a great bend of the Ebro river just east of Gandesa in Catalonia.

Bull Kills Retired Wisconsin Professor

Madison —(AP)— Frederick T. Kelly, 77, retired University of Wisconsin professor, was killed yesterday by a bull on the farm of his brother-in-law, Ernest Baxter, near Mineral Point.

Funeral services will be held in the University Methodist church here at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Professor Kelly retired seven years ago after teaching Semitic languages at the university 35 years. His contributions were published in nationally-known magazines.

The bull attacked him while he was working in the yard at the Baxter farm, where he and Mrs. Kelly were visiting. He was unconscious when found by Baxter, who had been visiting a neighbor.

Divided into three groups for competitive and demonstration purposes, the firemen will study life saving, ladder climbing, resuscitation, control and operation of fire fighting equipment.

Scrap Parts of World War Treaty as Little Entente Permits Hungary to Rearm

Military Equality Granted 'In Interest of Peace'

Bled, Yugoslavia—(AP)—The Little Entente swept away the military clauses of another World war treaty today and gave Hungary the right to rearm "in the interest of peace."

The three nations—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—agreed to abrogate arms restrictions in the Trianon treaty and grant military equality to Hungary.

The action followed a similar move by the Balkan entente, which includes Rumania and Yugoslavia, on July 30 wiping out military clauses of the treaty of Neuilly which limited Bulgaria's rearmament.

Three Day Conference

Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch, premier and foreign minister of Yugoslavia, made the announcement at the close of a three-day conference of Little Entente foreign ministers in this little resort.

He said the principle of an understanding had been reached with Hungary also on bilateral non-aggression pacts and minority problem details which would be negotiated between Hungary and the three nations individually.

Conversations on Danubian navigation, he said, also will be held in Belgrade "in the fall."

A formal communique expressed satisfaction over improvement of the international situation in Europe, particularly between the little entente countries and their neighbors.

The communique contained references to the league of nations which observers considered slightly critical, but there was no indication

Civil Service Heads Warn Workers to Avoid Politics

Washington — (AP)—A half-million federal employes have been reminded they must stay out of politics or suffer severe penalties.

The civil service commission issued a statement yesterday, under a two-inch heading "Warning," emphasized that workers who attained positions through competitive examinations (classified employes) risked discharge for such slight infractions as wearing campaign buttons.

Executive or judicial officers or employes, the notice added, could be fined $5,000 and imprisoned for three years for soliciting campaign contributions from other federal officials or employes.

The notice pointed out that even presidential appointees were prohibited from serving on political committees, soliciting funds, displaying "obstrusive partisanship," or using their positions to further any candidate's cause.

Among the added restrictions on classified employes are:

Organizing, conducting or addressing political meetings.

Engaging in public political discussions.

Manifesting "offensive" activity at polling places.

Serving as an election officer.

Distributing campaign literature or circulating petitions.

Becoming "prominently identified" with any political movement, party or faction.

Unclassified employes were not included in the notice. Other statutes prohibit them from using their official positions to influence elections.

Flying Boat Completes First Leg of Experimental Hop

Lisbon —(AP)— The French flying boat Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris alighted on the Tagus river here at 4:05 p. m. (10:05 a. m., C. S. T.) today, completing the first leg of an experimental flight to New York.

It was announced the plane would fly via Lisbon and Horta, the Azores.

The ship had started for New York on Aug. 18, but was forced by propellor trouble to return.

The seaplane was piloted by Henri Guillaumet, Henri le Claire was co-pilot, with Paul Comet as navigator, and Jacques Neri and Georges Bauchard, radio operators. There were three mechanics.

Chinese Civilians are Being Trained for War

Shanghai—(AP)—A million soldiers and 200,000 civilians were reported mobilized today to protect the Hankow area should the Japanese break the deadlock that has kept them 110 miles from the provisional Chinese capital for nearly a month.

The Chinese civilians were being trained in many behind-the-lines duties in the Hankow district. Included were 60,000 ricksha pullers who would become a troop transport corps.

Chinese newspapers which reported these details also said women were being given important roles as nurses and military aids.

DeNoble has the alternative of serving 60 days in the county detention camp on each count, the sentences to run consecutively, and he indicated he would serve out the time.

Blame Dead Motorman For Subway Accident

New York—(AP)—A transit commission report today blamed motorman Salvatore Cota, 46, for New York city's worst subway crash in a decade.

Cota and a passenger were killed and 51 persons injured yesterday when the train he was driving crashed into the rear of another train that had made an emergency stop at the Interborough Rapid Transit company's station at 116th street and Lexington avenue.

William G. Fullen, chairman of the commission, said Cota had violated a company rule that no train should enter a station until the train had cleared it completely.

Fascists Begin Count Of All Jews in Italy

Rome—(AP)—Italy started her special census of Jews today.

Questionnaires more than a yard long were distributed to all Jews and "suspected Jews" with the admonition that there would be severe penalties for those evading the census or giving false information.

Since the count included all Jews in Italy as of midnight last night, foreign Jewish tourists, including Americans, were among those given questionnaires.

The census, ordered under the new fascist racial program, is preparatory to the government's plan to limit Jewish participation in "the full life of the nation" in proportion to their percentage of the total population.

Witness Says Tammany Leader Promised 'Protection'

MAGISTRATE NAMED

Manager of Policy Banks Claims Raids Decreased

New York —(AP)— George Weinberg, 36, once business manager for the multi-million dollar Dutch Schultz policy racket, testified in supreme court today that City Magistrate Hulon Capshaw agreed to "fix" policy raid arrests for Tammany District Leader James J. Hines.

Crowning his previous sensational testimony of having personally paid Hines "$500 a week in cash, and sometimes higher," Weinberg said he was present at a meeting when Magistrate Capshaw agreed to "take care" of a policy case for Hines.

Hines is on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with his alleged "fixing" activities.

Weinberg said he was with Hines when the Tammany man met Magistrate Capshaw at an uptown Democratic club, and that Hines told Capshaw:

"I have a policy case—a very important one. Will you be able to handle it for me?"

"I haven't failed you yet," Weinberg quoted Magistrate Capshaw as replying. "I'll take care of it, all right."

Magistrate Capshaw has been listed by Dewey as having been "intimidated, influenced or bribed" by Hines, along with the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin and former District Attorney William Copeland Dodge.

The witness testified that during one of his frequent "pay off" meetings with the politician, he talked to Hines about the police.

"What did you say to Hines?" asked District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

"I told him there were too many arrests," Weinberg said.

"Raids Decreased"

"Hines promised he would try to do something about the police," Weinberg went on, "and later the number of arrests in policy bank raids decreased."

He said "the Dutchman" had sent him to see Hines, telling him:

"You know what to do. Go over and see Jimmy and see if he can stop these arrests."

"The arrests started going up again in September, 1932," Weinberg testified, "and I again went to Hines and complained about it, on Schultz' instructions, and the arrests soon dropped way down again. We had no more trouble that year and I never had occasion after that to speak to Hines about the police."

Weinberg testified that in August or September, 1932, he was summoned by J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, the "kid mouthpiece" of the Dutch Schultz mob and that Davis asked him for $2,000 which Davis told him he had paid Hines.

Hines Undisturbed

"I told Davis that Schultz had approved only $1,000 of the payment," Weinberg said. "Davis agreed to take the other $1,000 as his own loss."

Hines listened placidly to Weinberg's story. The 61-year-old Tammany stalwart, showed no sign of emotion.

Weinberg said that at that time the Schultz syndicate was grossing $64,000 a day for 307 days a year, or about $19,648,000 annually.

Weinberg said Schultz demanded 60 per cent of the racket profits to take care of his mob "and Jimmy Hines."

Weinberg said that in March, 1932, Schultz told him to "lay off" a policy bank operated by Ed and Elmer Maloney until Jimmy Hines gets back from Hot Springs, Arkansas."

It was Weinberg's second appearance as a state's witness. Last week he testified he had attended a meeting at which Hines, 61-year-old leader of New York politics for the past quarter century, accepted a $1,000 envelope for supplying political "protection" to the policy racket.

Rain, Leaky 'Grave' Spoil Buried-Alive Business for Pair

Chicago—(AP)—Competition and a leaky "grave" ruined, for the time being at least, the buried-alive business of Oscar Atkins and Lester G. McIntyre.

Both were buried alive in five-foot "graves" in suburban Proviso. Their manager collected 10 cents a peep from anyone who would pay to see the human moles.

McIntyre, of Zanesville, Ohio, said Saturday's rain drove him out.

Atkins, of Chicago, said his business fell off when Mrs. Mariam Weaver, 20, of Grand Rapids, Mich., ensconced herself in a "grave" two blocks away. She had virtually all the comforts of home—a sofa, radio, electric fan and lights, and magazines.

"Anyone would rather see a girl buried alive than a man," complained Atkins, "and that includes me."

Brooklyn College Labeled 'Hotbed' Of Red Activity

Witness Claims There Is Widespread Communism In Other Schools

Washington — (AP)—Congressional investigations heard testimony today that Brooklyn college, New York, "might quite fairly be labeled a hotbed of propaganda" and communist activity.

Professor Edward I. Fenlon of the college's department of philosophy made the assertion in testimony before the house committee investigating Un-American activities.

The witness added that in his opinion there was widespread communistic activity in many other colleges and universities.

He said that "the teachers union," a CIO affiliate active at Brooklyn college, was in his opinion "communistic controlled and "communist dictated" although many members were ignorant of its true purpose.

Lauded Congress

Fenlon also told the committee the "Stalinist-supported chairman" of the "alien directed" American Youth congress had received a letter from President Roosevelt in 1936 lauding the congress for aiding democracy.

Fenlon added that "Mrs. Roosevelt" has gone out of the way unwittingly to inspire the alien spirit that undoubtedly controls this congress."

The congress to which Fenlon referred met in Milwaukee in 1936. He said "the president also sent a letter of regard to the American Youth congress at its last December meeting at Poughkeepsie."

The witness also contended that the World Youth congress at Vassar college was radical-dominated and a "danger" to democracy because it serves to spread the "leaven" of communism.

Corroborates Testimony

Professor Earl A. Martin, chairman of the biology department at Brooklyn, corroborated much of Professor Fenlon's testimony about communism in Brooklyn college.

Chairman Dies (D-Texas) announced public hearings would be recessed after today's session. He said a sub-committee of four headed by Representative Starnes (D-Ala.) would go to New York for a preliminary examination of material gathered for the new phase of the inquiry.

The Starnes group will begin hearings in about a week, and expects to complete its work seven or eight days later. Representatives Dempsey (D-N. M.), Healey (D-Mass) and Thomas (R-N. J.) will accompany Starnes.

Dempsey, Starnes and Mosier (D-Ohio) will form a subcommittee to work on the west coast, and Mosier, Dies and Mason (R-Ill.) will conduct a midwestern inquiry.

Heil Points to Value Of Small Business Man

Port Washington—(AP)—The small business man, said Julius P. Heil yesterday, is an important unit of the nation's commercial life and must be free from unnecessary hindrances.

Heil, a Milwaukee manufacturer, is campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor.

"I have had a close contact with the small business man in the marketing of my products and they tell me their troubles," he said. "Many of their most serious troubles can be corrected or entirely done away with if the government of the state is doing the right thing."

Announces Program for 32nd Division Meeting

Madison—(AP)—Lieutenant Colonel Byron Beveridge, secretary of the Thirty-Second Division Veteran association, announced today a tentative program for the biennial convention to be held at Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 3-5, inclusive.

The largest delegation, he said, will leave by boat from Milwaukee at 11:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 2. The delegates will register Saturday, hold memorial and regimental meetings Sunday, and attend a banquet Sunday evening. Unfinished business will be taken up Monday.

Postmen Name Birds On Their Hate Lists

Washington—(AP)—Delegates to the national rural letter carriers' convention described birds today as their natural foes. The reason: mailboxes are favorite nesting places.

But that isn't all the difficulty. Said Tom Mahone of Lochapoka, Ala.:

"One of my patrons raised merry Ned about his letters disappearing. He watched and found that bluebirds took them. They tossed letters in the bushes all over the country."

Labor Relations Official to Talk At Labor Picnic

Pommerenck, U. S. Representative, One of Two Main Speakers

Henry Pommerenck, labor relations representative of the United States department of agriculture, and Arthur Huggins, general secretary and treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, will be the principal speakers at the Labor day celebration at Erb park Sept. 3, 4, and fifth which will be sponsored by the Appleton Trades and Labor council and the Harvey Pierre post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Huggins will speak at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, Sept. 4, and Pommerenck at the same time the following day.

The entertainment feature of the 3-day celebration will be a rodeo show, presenting 19 riders and performers and 89 head of horses and cattle. During the celebration, acts will be presented from the platform at Erb park and games and amusement rides will be available.

The rodeo riders will parade Saturday afternoon, the day preceding the opening of the celebration. The main Labor day parade will start at 9 o'clock Monday morning, Sept. 5. Police Chief George T. Prim and members of his department will lead the procession. The Appleton High school band, 120th Field Artillery band, and state championship SOTAL Drum and Bugle corps will provide music.

Prizes will be awarded for the best floats and best decorated bicycles. Mike Steinhauer will be marshal of the day.

Asks Communists be Denied Right to Vote

Oconomowoc, Wis. —(AP)— Earl H. Munson, candidate for the Progressive nomination for lieutenant governor, today demanded that communists be denied the right to vote.

"To you as administrator of the law of the state of Wisconsin," Munson said in a message to Attorney General Orland S. Loomis, "I make this request that the attorney general instruct each and every district attorney of this state charging them with the responsibility of issuing orders to every city and county election commissioner to challenge the right of the known communists to vote at the coming primary election Sept. 20. . . .

"The basis for my demand is that if these communists are not citizens, they have no right to a vote —and if they are communists, even though citizens, they are enemies of democracy and their very allegiance to communism negates and dissolves their right to American citizenship and therefore they sacrifice their right to exercise the ballot."

WPA Painting Project At Kaukauna Approved

Police Bicycle Safety Bureau to be Opened by Department Next Month

Operation of a police bicycle safety bureau, designed to promote safety on the streets of the city, will start next month.

The bicycle safety bureau is being established after almost two years of study of similar bureaus and their effects in other cities.

Two years ago the police department, under the direction of Chief of Police George T. Prim and Sergeant Carl Radtke of the traffic squad, undertook a safety education program in the schools. The program is still being carried on and the work of the bicycle safety bureau will be dove-tailed with that of the school program.

Chief Prim stressed the need for cooperation of the general public and parents in making the bureau a success. The bureau will attempt to show bicycle riders the need for knowing and observing rules and regulations for safe bike riding.

Youngsters often disregard such regulations, and the bureau will show them the danger in doing so.

Open Saturdays

When a bicycle rider fails to observe some rule of safe riding, an officer will give him a "summons" ticket which lists the infraction and instructs him to appear at the safety bureau. The bureau will be open at 9 o'clock every Saturday morning. Sergeant Radtke will be in charge.

Bicycle rules and regulations will be explained to the rider, and he will be informed of the death and injury toll of bicycle accidents. There will be no penalty for first offenses, as the bureau will not act in the capacity of a traffic court but as a school of safety instruction.

However, should a cyclist fail to abide by the regulations or repeatedly fail to obey the rules, he may be instructed to write such rule a specified number of times during the following week and return the next Saturday with his penalty written out. Only in extreme cases will the rider's machine be taken from him for a period of time to impress upon him the need for observance of the regulations.

Sergeant Radtke said that the safety bureau will open early in September. The purpose of the bureau will be explained in talks to be given at the schools after they open.

Regulations

Following are causes for which a cyclist may be instructed to appear at the bureau:

Riding more than one on a bicycle.
Clinging to moving vehicles.
Trick and stunt riding.
Riding without hands on handle bars.
Racing.
Having trailer, handsled, etc., attached.
Parking on sidewalk
Failure to obey stop sign or traffic signal.
Riding without lights
Riding on sidewalk.
Riding abreast.
Failure to signal
Failure to have bicycle registration.

About 2,200 bicycle registrations have already been filed with Joseph Kox, city treasurer. This means bicycle traffic is steadily growing in the city and some steps must be taken to prevent a growing accident bicycle toll, Sergeant Radtke said. Every bicycle should be registered, he explained, because it is an aid in identification in case of an accident, it deters thefts and it inculcates in youths safe riding practices.

Henry Defends Coalition Move

Candidate for Governor Refutes Charges of 'New Party'

Rice Lake, Wis. —(AP)— Efforts of "Progressives and Democratic machine-controlled candidates" to disparage the coalition movement, Robert K. Henry said last night, "is the best testimonial that can be had of its strength and increasing momentum."

Henry, Democratic - Republican coalition candidate for governor, said he was directing his remarks at the Progressive candidate for lieutenant governor (Earl H. Munson) and his opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor (Jerome Fox), "both of whom have referred to the coalition movement as 'a new party'."

"You will find the name of Robert K. Henry on the Democratic ballot," Henry said. "Is that a new party? You will also find my name on the Republican ballot. Is that a new party?

"The Progressive candidate would have you believe so because he knows the aversion of Wisconsin voters to new parties. The leaders of his own party have had some experience along that line."

The straight and narrow way is to see and acknowledge this fact, yield to this power, and follow the leading of truth. The human thought must free itself from self-imposed materiality and bondage. It should no longer ask of the head, heart, or lungs: What are man's prospects for life? Mind is not helpless. Intelligence is not mute before non-intelligence. Every function of the real man is governed by the divine mind."

The Candidates

Brief Sketches of the Men Seeking Nominations

ALEXANDER WILEY

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison, Wis.—Alexander Wiley, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate, is the son of Norwegian immigrants who settled near Stevens Point in the 70's. Born in Chippewa Falls 54 years ago, he has lived there all his life.

The family name was Vila, but Wiley's father changed it to the English equivalent of Wiley. . . . Educated in the public schools of Chippewa Falls and the Augsburg seminary, he obtained a degree in law from the University of Wisconsin in 1907. He has practiced law for 31 years.

He began his political career two years ago when he ran for governor, getting 364,000 votes. Previously he was district attorney of Chippewa county for three terms.

Mrs. Wiley was May Jenkins before her marriage and is a graduate of Lawrence college. She once taught in Kaukauna high school, and is today a member of the Lawrence board of trustees. The Wiley's have three children.

He believes that "the philosophy of the present national administration is destructive of American democratic principles", and "that the future of America lies in free enterprise subject only to that government regulation which is necessary for the general welfare."

As the owner of a dairy farm in Barron county, Wiley claims a knowledge of farm problems and asserts that the New Deal "is crippling the Wisconsin dairy farmer" by the encouragement of southern dairy competition.

Wiley was first in the field for the G. O. P. nomination several months ago, and has been barnstorming throughout the state ever since.

State Women Have Part in Politics

Democrats Claim Party Has Recognized Their Importance

Milwaukee—(AP)—Two Democratic candidates for state offices, Jerome F. Fox for governor and Mrs. Louise Givan for secretary of state, spoke at a hotel meeting sponsored by the women's Democratic party organization of Milwaukee county last night.

Fox said it was of great importance that women take an interest in politics, but that they have been discouraged by the present state administration. Democrats, on the other hand, have not failed to give due credit and recognition to women, he said.

Aside from a woman member of the president's cabinet, Fox said, Democrats have elected women governors in Texas and Wyoming. The only woman member of the Wisconsin legislature is a Democrat and the party has a woman candidate for secretary of state, he added.

"Third Party"

Mrs. Givan termed the Democratic-Republican coalition a "third party" and said it was "as consistent in its support of men and principles as a Reno courtship."

"Do not confuse the issue," she declared. "No national Progressive is endorsing the Roosevelt program, but is opposing it as destructively as any Republican. And as for coalition, it was welcomed as manna from heaven by the Progressive party when they found they could expect no support from the man on whose coattails they had coasted into office.

"In spite of what you hear to the contrary, a vote for coalition is a vote to continue the LaFollettes in office."

Donkey From New Mexico Finds Home in Appleton

The kids who were playing out in the vicinity of 926 Harris street yesterday afternoon had a little more fun than usual, because they had another chance to see and admire Jocko.

You couldn't help but stop and admire him, your self if you chanced to see him walking demurely along the street, pulling his quaint 2-wheel cart.

Jocko is a little gray donkey, with long, handsome ears, and he's the property of Victor H. Missling, 926 Haase avenue. Yesterday afternoon, Jocko went out for a spin with one of the young Missling boys, Kenneth, at the reins.

There were a couple other Missling boys along and it wasn't hard to elicit information on Jocko and just what he was doing cantering along an Appleton street.

From New Mexico

He's originally from New Mexico, it seems, where donkeys are much more common. He's lived in Appleton now for about three years and doesn't seem to mind it at all. He's eight years old now and is graying at the temples.

Jocko isn't just a do-nothing, by any means. He works for his board and room at the Missling place, pulling a plough and a cultivator over the fields. The Misslings bought a plow just the right size for Jocko, because, after all, his stature is considerably less than that of a horse.

The Missling boys weren't exactly sure just how much the donkey weighs but they remembered putting him on scales in a coal yard once and he balanced up at something over 400 pounds. One of the youngs was certain he weighs over 500.

"You should have him step on your toe once, then you'd know," he observed.

Can't Ride Him

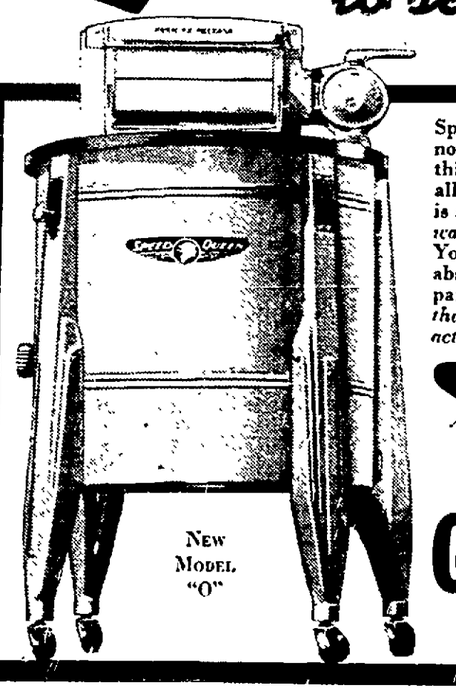

Jocko used to enjoy having the boys ride bareback, but recently he changed his whole outlook on the matter. One of the young Misslings believes somebody wasn't nice to him and he has become a cynic. Jocko pitches violently now whenever anyone gets astride his spinal column. Nothing dangerous, understand, but convincing.

The little gray donkey is good-natured otherwise, the boys assured listeners yesterday. "Oh, once in awhile if you tease him he puts his ears back and runs at you, but he really doesn't mean it," one of them said.

The braying of a donkey is rather picturesque and there were high hopes among some of those who met him for the first time yesterday afternoon that Jocko would open up and express an opinion or two.

But he was very reticent, just stood with his head lowered and his eyes cast shyly on the ground. But he does bray, the Missling boys said. Quite often, when he's out in the field, he throws his head back and emits a rather dismal sound. Just what it means only Jocko knows, they said.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD

Madison—It happens to all parties as soon as the growing pains are over, as soon as the exuberant and rosy idealism of crusades and reforms gives way to the practical machine politics of a party in power. And it has happened in Wisconsin's dominant young Progressive party.

Wyngaard

Today there is a split in the LaFollette movement as any chasm which ever separated the stalwarts and the halfbreeds in the days of Sawyer and Stephenson and "Old Bob" La Follette, or as wide as the difference in philosophy between the eager young men who fill Washington bureaus and the tough veterans of the Carter Glass and Jack Garner stripe in the Democratic party.

It has been apparent for a long time but today Progressives can contemplate it in the open, in the form of an opposition slate. Although the party doesn't say so, there is a battle between the right and left, between Phil LaFollette and Herman Ekern on the one hand, and Tom Amlie and Glenn Turner on the other. The contrast is most marked in the battle between Ekern and Amlie, a battle of opposing ideologies, one favoring the romantic, historic progressivism of a by-gone trust-busting era, the other embracing the modern, radical program which envisions a national economy gradually growing more socialistic, which thinks the New Deal has made a pretty good beginning, but that's all.

SOCIALIST PROTEST

As disclosed in the opposition to Gov. LaFollette by Glenn Turner, a Socialist favorite, it is clearly a futile protest; Governor LaFollette can have the Progressive nomination as long as he wants it. But many wide awake Progressives will tell you that the Ekern-Amlie fight is different, that Amlie, if the election were to be held tomorrow, would have an excellent chance to win the nomination.

Ekern is a conservative, at least so the party regards him. Growing up in the palmy days of Republican invincibility in the last century, he faithfully followed the radical—for that time—preachments of the elder LaFollette. Today, according to the restless newer and younger elements of the LaFollette entourage, the ideas of that period are as outmoded as the Republicanism of Mark Hanna and McKinley.

Besides all that, the old-timers on whom Ekern banks so heavily are getting fewer; some have even reverted to the Republicans. And, it is no secret that the venerable, white-haired lieutenant governor is not exactly charming his numerous audiences. On a Progressive ticket which has usually furnished oratorical talent in abundance, Ekeren is distinctly a dud, many Progressives think.

OUTAGAMIE TROUBLES

A week ago this column noted that there was some chagrin at party headquarters at the capitol when it was discovered that the Progressive committee in Outagamie county failed to put up a slate for the elections this year. Now, it appears, something is going to be done about it.

One of the most active organizers of Governor LaFollette's new party is Walter Melchoir of New London, a lawyer and Waupaca county Progressive leader. Melchoir this month will move to Appleton and try to reorganize the Progressive county machine. He is reported to plan a Progressive rally at which Governor LaFollette will be asked to open his campaign for reelection formally.

Significantly, Melchoir is a member of the executive board of the left-wing Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation, as is Sam Sigman, present Progressive chieftain in the county. But Melchoir early endorsed the new party, and arranged that the Waupaca county unit was one of the first in the state to do so, while Sigman has been markedly cool toward the venture into the national field. Developments may be awaited with interest, according to gossip at party headquarters.

THE POLITICS OF NON-PARTISANSHIP

The alert student of Wisconsin politics will have noted an unusual number of county board politicians and county officers who are candidates for legislative seats this year. This may be a coincidence, but it is significant in view of the determination of Wisconsin county officialdom to put over a non-partisan county elections bill in the legislature next January.

Such a proposal was beaten in a narrow squeeze in 1937. Since that time every organization of county officers has adopted resolutions promising a campaign for it before the next legislature, making it likely that this proposition, innocuous as it may seem, will furnish some of the best battles of the forthcoming session.

Although the tax-paying citizen can see no reason why his sheriff should run under a Republican or any other label, since he has no conceivable part in shaping governmental policy, while members of county boards, who are legislators, run on a non-partisan basis, the question has a vital importance in party politics.

Party organizations quite frankly expect the aid of county officers who run on their tickets, and the partisan system is of immense help. Thus they have at their disposal full-time, efficient county machinery. To understand just how closely county elections are related to the state political picture, consider the following figures, compiled by M. G. Toepel of Neenah, which show the distribution of the five county officers in each of the 71 counties among the parties for the years 1918 to 1936.

Year	Rep.	Dem.	Soc.	Prog.
1920	338	17	0	0
1922	335	20	0	0
1924	342	13	0	0
1926	333	22	0	0
1928	336	19	0	0
1930	329	25	1	0
1932	261	94	0	0
1934	171	92	0	92
1936	163	95	0	97

It will be observed that the Republican party has consistently dominated county offices. During this same period Republicans captured state elections with a clock-like regularity. It is also shown that the Democratic victory in 1932 was immediately reflected in the county elections, in even some of the county elections, in even some of the counties which had never before sent Democrats to the courthouse. And in 1934, when the Republican party split into its Progressive and Stalwart parts, Progressives immediately got a good slice of the county plums. With continued success in the state field, this may be expected to increase.

Thus can the alignment on the non-partisan bill be predicted at the next legislative session.

FAMILY AFFAIR

The Olejniczaks of Brown county are Progressives; make no mistake about that. And they want Phillip F. LaFollette to be governor.

Included in the stacks of nomination petitions which are now being copied for the Progressive headquarters mailing list is a sheet of signatures obtained by Dominic Olejniczak, Progressive city councilman in Green Bay, and secretary of the Brown County Farm Loan association. It is entirely filled with the signatures of members of his immediate family, papa, mamma, sisters and brothers.

To Dominic last week went a personal letter of thanks from the chief, with the observation that in all his years of politics it was the first of its kind which he had ever seen or received.

"Jab" Murray Speaking

Richard "Job" Murray, former star of the Green Bay Packers and now serving his sixth consecutive term as mayor of Marinette, wants it known that his public service is at least as important as his athletic prowess. Murray feels that too much stress is being laid on his athletic ability, and that not enough publicity has been given to his record of office holding. So here goes: Besides his career with the Packers and the Hilltoppers at Marquette in a grid uniform, Mr. Murray was city attorney of Marinette from 1925 to 1928, mayor from 1928 to the present, member of the county board of supervisors 1933 and 1937, member of the state utility corporation, and is now county prosecutor.

He is a Republican candidate for attorney general.

POT-POURRI

There are some arched eye-brows in opposition circles on the apparently generous campaign expenditures of Julius P. Heil. . . . Robert Henry, the Coalition candidate who would rid the state of the "LaFollette political plague" is, strangely enough, a warm personal friend of Seretary of State Theodore Dammann. . . . Glen Turner is hitting the LaFollette administration in the most sensitive spots. The LaFollette pension record for example, leaves a lot of old folks far from pleased. Follette: Turner is not 70 years of it. Note to Ned Sparks, Communist state leader who recently castigated Turner and praised LaFollette: Turned is not 70 years of age, but 49. . . . . $50,000 is the goal of the current membership campaign of the new National Progressive party. . . . . .

City Sewage Plant Equipped at Present For City of 35,000

The Appleton sewage treatment plant is presently equipped for a city of 35,000 people and can be enlarged for a population as high as 65,000, Clarence O. Baetz, plant superintendent, said in a talk before the Appleton Lions club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

Using charts and pictures, Baetz explained the sewage process at the plant and the functions of the various pieces of equipment. The plant, he said, is designed for an average flow of 10,000,000 gallons a day but can handle 32,000,000.

Baetz gave a brief outline of the history of sewage treatment, stating that the first scientifically designed plant in the United States was built in Augusta, Maine, in 1875. The first of the filter type plants was erected at Reading, Pa., in 1908 and was the forerunner of modern sewage treatment methods.

What's New at the Library

The young high school graduate who is venturing out into the unknown land of college or university life this fall will find the little book, "As Others Like You" by Margaret B. Stephenson and Ruth L. Millett, of value as a guide to social behavior. While every girl or boy who has reached the middle 'teens should know the rudiments of good behavior, sometimes he or she forgets how really important it becomes in making those first impressions on the campus. This little volume tells how to accept or reject invitations, how to ask for dates, cut in at dances and otherwise conduct oneself in the "social whirl."

A group of five slim little books deal with the problem of self-improvement. One, "Keeping Physically Fit" by Prosser and Anderson tells you what to eat, how to take care of teeth, eyes and ears, and in general how to keep healthy and vigorous. Another by the same authors, "A Health Program," gives general information on doing the things that promote good health, safeguard against disease and lengthen life through fighting germs, getting plenty of fresh air, avoiding quacks and patent medicines. It has a chapter on alcohol and nicotine. "Getting a Job" gives steps and ways of selecting a job, locating prospective employers and getting in contact with them, applying for and securing a job.

"Selecting an Occupation" by Prosser and Palmer gives directions for finding the demands and opportunities of occupations, for checking individual assets against such demands and for choosing a suitable occupation, while "Taking a Look at Yourself" by Prosser uses Charles A. Lindbergh as an example of qualities to be desired in a successful person.

A new set of John Galsworthy's works has been received at Appleton Public library. It consists of 18 volumes bound in green and gold, including the author's plays, novels and short stories.

The library has received another set of books which will be of value to teachers and parents. It is called "Childcraft," and consists of four volumes and a handbook of unit teaching materials. One volume is a teacher guide with suggested procedure; another is on activity with units on community life, animals, farm life, food, gardens, library and literature and the like; the third is entitled Better Teaching and takes up language, spelling, reading, handwriting, arithmetic, art, music, health and safety; and the fourth is on teachers' problems, discussing the personality of the teacher, her equipment, discipline and natural growth, typical daily programs, planning work, records and reports, and problem children.

Among the books which the library probably will order soon is "Palestrina" by Henry Coates, one of the Master Musicians series. It gives attention to the famous sixteenth century Roman polyphonist and tells the reader that the creator of the Misses Papae Marcelli was a producer and seller of wine and was engaged in a form of real estate dealing.

Three other books belonging to the same series on industrial arts have been added to the library collection. One is "General Shop Woodworking" by Fryklund and La Berge, for use in the junior high school, which is designed to provide instruction in elementary and intermediate woodworking as offered in several types of shop organization. Many illustrations along the borders of the pages show what the printed material is trying to convey.

"General Shop Electricity" by A. W. and K. L. Dragoo consists of wiring diagrams, circuit layouts, wiring plans, fundamental electrical connections, basic theoretical information and projects suitable for presenting the subject to the general shop students in either junior or senior high school. "General Shop Metal Work" by Dragoo discusses bench metal work, sheet and art metal work.

Replace Foundation Of Brillion Town Hall

Forest Junction — Minor repairs on the Brillion town hall here were begun on Monday morning when a crew of masons removed the old foundation walls of the building and made preparations to replace them with new ones. The foundations, in tipping from their original positions, caused the walls to separate from the floor. Concrete blocks are being used in the construction of the new piers. The building was erected in 1894.

Complete Landscaping At City Sewage Plant

Landscaping work at the Appleton Treatment plant has been completed except for the planting of 250 young trees received recently, according to C. O. Baetz, plant superintendent. Included in the work was the construction of a retaining wall near the administration building, installation of curbs and gutters on the road leading to the plant, graveling of the road and leveling and seeding of the property.

Interrupting his fishing to rescue a girl from drowning, a 13-year-old boy went home, changed his clothes and was back with rod and line within half-an-hour, at Oxford, Eng.

Did Right By Passing 2 Spade Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Will you please settle a very delicate point of bidding, one involving nothing but judgment? My bridge club has split into two armed camps and I am afraid that truce can follow only on your intervention. This is the hand:

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplication.

NORTH
♠ A 6 5
♥ K Q 7
♦ Q 6 4 3
♣ K 9 5

WEST
♠ J 10 8 4
♥ J 10
♦ A 10 7 2
♣ J 10 6

EAST
♠ None
♥ A 8 6 5 3 5
♦ K J 9 5
♣ A 7 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q 9 7 3 2
♣ Q 8 4 2

"I wish to emphasize that this hand was played at match-point duplicate. If it occurred at rubber bridge I think the decision would be much easier. Both sides were vulnerable and East, the dealer, opened with the normal bid of one heart. South passed and West bid a no trump. North passed and East bid two hearts. South and West passed, and now North came in with a double. East passed. South responded with two spades and West doubled. North passed. This brings us to the burning question: What should East do? I might say that actually, after a long huddle, he passed, and that the two spade doubled contract was fulfilled and gave the opponents game.

"East and his supporters claim his pass was correct; that, despite his void spade suit, he was justified in feeling that the two spade contract should be defeated one trick perhaps more, whereas he himself would be in great danger were he to rebid hearts or mention the four card diamond suit. West and his cohorts insist that the leave-in of the double was atrocious. They point out that West had announced by his no trump take-out that he had comparatively little honor strength and, in so far as spades were concerned, they maintained that West could not have a reasonably good spade suit, because if he had he would have responded to the heart bid with one spade instead of a no trump. They insist that East should have taken the double out to three diamonds. They admit that this might have been a dangerous move, but, according to them, it would have been a great deal less dangerous than letting the opponents play two spades doubled.

"What's the verdict?"

"S. S. New York."

Well, my correspondent warned me that this was a very close point and he certainly was right! It seems that East was pretty well trapped by circumstances. Note that North's delayed take-out double found South with not only a good spade suit but one that was six long. Had South held only a five card suit with another diamond (the most likely addition in that case) the defenders could have taken two diamonds, a heart, a spade, and two clubs for a very satisfactory score. Even with the six card suit South might have had two diamonds and three clubs. Thus, although I concede the logic of the opinions held by the West camp (that if West had had a good spade suit he would have shown it rather than bid a no trump), I must cast my vote in favor of East's decision. I freely concede that usually it is unwise to leave in the penalty double of a low contract when void of the doubled suit. But in this case East had reason to feel that any three bid by himself might be severely penalized, whereas two spades might surely be defeated.

Old Gardener Says:

The bulbs of these irises are considered by many persons who know them to be the most beautiful of all the irses. Indeed the so-called Spanish, Dutch and English irses are often compared to the finest orchids, but they are all too often overlooked by garden makers. Perhaps this is due to the fact that there has been a generally accepted belief that they are not hardy in the North. Recent tests, however, have proved this not to be true if they are given the protection of a few evergreen boughs after the ground is frozen. The bulbs of these irises are usually delivered to the dealers early in the fall, and orders for them should, therefore, be placed immediately. As soon as they are received they should be planted in a well-drained soil in a sunny location.

The amount of pattern already in the room should determine whether plain or figured material should be used for draperies and furniture. When wallpaper and rugs are figured, the slip covers should be plain. Generally there is more danger of having too much pattern in a room than not having enough.

Crocheted Collar

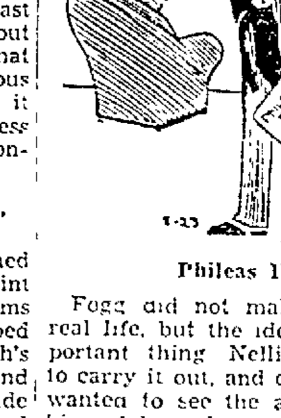

To brighten last season's frock try a hand-crocheted collar. This white one is made of tatting cotton in a star-wheel pattern. The neckline is worked in a diagonal rib effect combining the single crochet and chain stitches. It fastens in front with two small crocheted buttons.

Nellie Bly's World Trip

II—THROUGH EUROPE

Nellie Bly probably would not have made her famous trip if it had not been for Jules Verne. This French author had written a book 18 years before, a book in which a character named Phileas Fogg was supposed to make a round-the-world trip in 80 days, making use of "liners, railways, carriages, yachts, trading vessels, sledges and elephant."

Phileas Fogg

Fogg did not make the trip in real life, but the idea was the important thing Nellie Bly decided to carry it out, and on her way she wanted to see the author and tell him of her plan

After a short visit in England, she crossed the channel, and visited Jules Verne in his home at Amiens. 'Oh, my! Oh my!" exclaimed the gray-haired man when he saw her. "What a child! Is it possible that a child is going all that long way by herself."

Newspaper reporters later visited Verne, and asked him to give his views on the trip "It is a brilliant plan,' he said "Traveling is faster now than when I wrote my book. It may be that Miss Bly will go around the world in 78 or 79 days.'

Meanwhile Nellie was speeding on. She had crossed the Atlantic in eight days, a good record at that time, though the best modern liners can make the journey in four and a half days. Aboard the Indian Mail express, she sped across France, through Switzerland and down to Brindsi, in southern Italy. From there she cabled to New York:

"In a few hours I will be on the bosom of the Mediterranean. I am quite well, though somewhat tired. I send greetings to all my friends."

Going around the world in a hurry may be exciting, but it means that many interesting things must be left out of the trip. The boat which carried the eager young American stopped at Port Said, Egypt, but there was no time for her to make a real visit in that amazing country. She did not see the pyramids, or the Great Sphinx

Onward she had to go, onward through the Suez canal. "It took us 24 hours to get through the canal," she wrote. "Our next port was Aden. Before we came to it, we passed 12 high mountains, known as the Twelve Apostles.

"Passengers were warned not to go ashore in Aden because of the intense heat. We did, however, and the heat was not so intense as we expected. The mountains are black, the people are black, and so are the animals. There is not a speck of green foliage."

During a short visit to Aden last winter, I saw more negroes than I had seen during all the time I was in Egypt.

Children's Attitude Depends Upon Parents

BY ANGELO PATRI

"O, come on. Just telephone your mother that you are coming home with me to stay for the night. Then come along. What can she do?"

"O, I couldn't do that."

"Why not?"

"I just couldn't. Besides, my mother would come right out after me and what could I say? There isn't any use in asking her if I can go because she never lets me go to stay overnight, and she wouldn't let me go to an affair at the inn anyway. She just wouldn't."

"Make her. I make my mother. I scare her to death if she threatens to go the stern parent on me."

"What do you mean, scare her?" I wouldn't want to frighten my mother. Why, it would be awful. And my father, and everybody would just about want to disown me. You're just fooling, Marie. I've got to go. Mother will be wondering what is keeping me."

"You're being kept like an infant. Fifteen, and you have to ask your mother if you can breathe. Not me, sister. When mother balks I just look dangerous, go upstairs and begin packing my bags. That always brings her. She thinks she is going to lose me sure."

"But you wouldn't really run away?"

"You never can tell. Anyway, it scares her. Try it. It works."

"You don't know my mother. She would let me pack my bags, and go. And getting back home would be up to me. I know my mother, and, anyway, I wouldn't be so silly. I don't want to worry her, and I wouldn't run away from home. Good-bye for now. No, I won't be able to go; thanks just the same."

"Not now, not any time," she murmured as she went up the walk to her own front door. "Why should I make my mother feel bad? Acting like a kid. Packing my bags. Like fun! O ma, where are you? I'm a little late. I was talking to Lina Were you waiting for me?"

"Yes," said mother. "I was watching for you. Your Aunt has invited you out for the week-end. An old friend arrived unexpectedly with a daughter, just your age, and your Aunt wants to have a little party for her. I have your things all packed. I got you that pretty little frock we admired in Young's window last week. Just the thing you wanted, you remember? You're going to have a wonderful time. Isn't it fun to be fifteen?"

"It is if you have a mother who happens to like you, like mine. Mother, I wouldn't trade you for — for anything. And I wouldn't frighten you, not if I could help it. You know that, don't you, mother?"

"Of course. Run along now, and get yourself ready for the train. You do think of the strangest things. At the strangest times. And don't forget to give your nails an extra doing. They can stand it. I want you to look nice. This is your very first week-end from home and you must do us credit.

"Now what would Marie think if she knew? Well, maybe she hasn't a really nice mother. It all depends. A party and the pink dress with the lace ruffles. O, joy! O bliss! O rapture—"

Yes, it all depends.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

Successful Souffles

Souffles are tricky and difficult to make only if you don't know the rules. The most important rule is to have a well behaved oven, one that is dependable and will maintain a steady temperature.

Miss Schneider

For best results souffle mixture should be baked in a moderate oven, (325 to 350 degrees F.) The character of the souffle is affected by the length of time it is baked. Over bake it and the souffle is dry, under bake it and it is sure to fall. Baked just the right length of time the souffle is moist within but firm enough to hold its shape. To be a success, a souffle must be delicate and tender but it must have some "body" to it or else it will fall before it reaches the dinner table. Flour and tapioca are some of the thickeners used to stiffen souffle mixtures.

The cheese souffle is an excellent dish to serve on Friday when you are planning a meatless dinner. If you have leftover chicken and want to make something different and unusual try the delicious chicken souffle. Watch the expressions of delighted surprise when you serve the dainty chocolate souffle.

Cheese Souffle

3 tbsp. butter — ½ teaspoon salt
3 tbsp. flour — 1 cup grated
3 eggs, separated — American cheese
1 cup milk

Melt butter, blend in flour, and salt Graduallly add milk, stirring until thick and smooth. Add cheese, stirring until melted. Beat egg yolks until thick and add. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry and fold in. Turn into greased casserole, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 35 or 40 minutes. Serves 4.

Chicken Souffle

1 cup diced cooked chicken — 1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
1 cup diced carrots — 1 cup boiling water
½ cup milk — 1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated — 4 tbsp. minute tapioca

Combine carrots, water, milk, salt and tapioca in a double boiler. Cook 15 minutes stirring frequently. Cool. add egg yolks which have been beaten until thick and lemon colored. Add chicken. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate over 350 degrees F. 50 to 60 minutes. Serves 6.

Chocolate Souffle

2 tbsp. butter — 1-3 cup sugar
2 tbsp. flour — 2 tbsp. hot water
¾ cup milk — 3 eggs, separated
1½ squares chocolate — ½ tsp. vanilla

Melt the butter, add flour, and pour on gradually milk. Cook until boiling-point is reached. Melt chocolate in a small sauce pan placed over hot water, add sugar and water, and stir until smooth. Combine mixtures, and add yolks of eggs well beaten, cool. Fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff, and add vanilla. Turn into greased baking dish, and bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes. Serve with sweetened whipped cream. Serves 4.

MILK DRINKS

With thermometers going up and appetites going down, we're likely to find that feeding the family during the hot weather is a real job. We want to serve something that's attractive and easy to make, but it must also have adequate food value.

"Make cold drinks," suggests Miss Gladys Stillman, extension nutritionist at the University of Wisconsin. "These beverages are good teasers for lagging summer appetites, and they are also an excellent way to make sure that every member of the family has the necessary amount of milk daily."

These drinks ought to be served very cold, if we want to bring out the best flavor. It's a good idea to keep the milk in the coldest place in the refrigerator so it will be chilled and ready for use in the milk drinks.

Chocolate or cocoa milk drinks are popular with almost everyone. Miss Stillman always keeps a jar of cocoa syrup on hand so it takes her only a few minutes to make these drinks. This is the way she makes the syrup.

Cocoa Syrup

½ cup cocoa — 2 cups sugar
1 cup cold water — 1 tsp. vanilla
⅛ tsp. salt

Mix cocoa and ½ cup cold water to a smooth paste. Add the remaining water and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth Add the salt and sugar and boil for about 3 minutes, stirring continuously. When cool, add vanilla. Pour into a clean jar and seal After each using of syrup, cover jar and seal tightly.

Your family will vote "yes" for these drinks that are made from the cocoa syrup.

CHOCOLATE MILK WHIP

2 or 3 tbsps. cocoa or chocolate syrup — 2 to 3 tsps. strong coffee
¾ cup milk

Mix the syrup, coffee, and milk. Beat well with an egg beater and chill. Top with a little whipped cream, if you wish, and a sprinkle of nutmeg or cinnamon. Be sure it is cold—cold enough to frost the glass when you serve it. The coffee may be omitted if you wish.

Bittersweet Cream Whip

2 to 3 tbsps. chocolate syrup — ¼ cup whipped cream
¾ cup milk — 1 tbs. powdered sugar
vanilla

Mix the chocolate syrup and the milk. Fold in the stiffly whipped cream, which has been sweetened with the powdered sugar and flavored with the vanilla.

Miss Stillman combines fruit juices and milk to make some of the tastiest drinks we could imagine.

Cherry Milk Snow

½ cup red cherry juice (from canned cherries) — 1 tbsp. lemon juice
1½ tbsp. sugar
few grains salt
1½ cups rich milk

Combine all the ingredients, except the milk, and boil slowly for 5 minutes. Chill, add to the milk and beat well with an egg beater.

My Neighbor Says—

Phlox has been the glory of the garden in recent weeks, but it is important to keep all seed pods removed and to prevent the starting of new plants around the old clumps. The reason that phlox plants appear to revert to the disagreeable magenta color often seen is that a few seeds escape the vigilance of the garden maker and produce new plants so closely interwoven with the parent that their presence is not recognized. This is the true explanation of a subject which is often a source of controversy among amateur garden makers, some of whom are convinced that phlox varieties actually change their color. Phlox plants, even those which are through blooming need an abundance of water, and once in three years they should be divided, this work being done late in the Autumn.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Our national beauty problem is no longer how American women should reduce, but rather, how those who are underweight can put on more pounds.

Too strenuous diets and constant worries have undermined the health of numerous women. The depression has something to do with the problem but emotions have even more.

The woman or girl who is very much below normal weight is usually the worrying type—or a fadist. One type builds mountains out of mole hills mentally, the other goes in for any diet she sees printed or is told about.

Keeping Normal Weight

Marked obesity is neither healthful nor pleasant. I urge any woman who is too stout to do something about her overweight, but to do it sanely. If it is glandular let her put herself in the hands of a competent gland physician. If it is caused by over-indulgence in eating, then she should master the will to limit her menus. Exercise (which the majority of women ignore) is so vitally important in keeping the mechanics of the body in order that I do not understand why it is ignored.

Adequate menus, enough exercise, and enough to do, should keep most women in their proper physical proportions. But alas, we find overweights and underweights and something must be done for both!

To Gain Weight

Nervous, energetic types are frequently skinny. And to be skinny is not beautiful. The new high hair styles, and strapless gowns demand normal weight. And a girl of normal weight is happier and lovelier to look upon, than one who has dieted or worried herself to the skinny stage!

My advice to underweights is this. Eat more than you need daily and learn to "unlax"! You must worry less. Adopt the motto "Put off until tomorrow all you can possibly avoid doing today!"

Eat and then sleep. Sleep after lunch if that is possible. Eat something or drink a glass of milk before going to bed. Eat two extra meals. One during the morning, another during the afternoon.

Whether you like them or not eat many green vegetables and drink quarts of fruit juices. They furnish the foundation on which the sugar and starches build flesh.

Put on extra pounds by doing this. Once you have gained that weight you can exercise and massage it into proper proportions.

Exercise enough to create an appetite — not to use up your energy.

Learn to sit or lie down whenever you can. Save yourself.

If you cannot gain weight by following these instructions you must see a physician — but give yourself at least one month's trial.

Mother-In-Law in Home Is Sometimes A Benediction

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—In this day and time, when so many young and old people are having to live in the homes of others, will you not say something kind about the old mothers and fathers? No doubt some of them are trouble-makers, but so are some young people. I happen to be a mother-in-law who has to live in the home of an only son. I have lost everything but him, and he cannot help me other than to have me share his home. I would be happy in my own home if I had one. No doubt they would prefer to be just alone. But what can we do? I try to be kind and considerate and helpful to his wife. It is a situation whereby we can all cultivate being unselfish.

A READER.

DOROTHY DIX

Answer:

When I write of the danger of a mother going to live with her married children, I am thinking far more of her than I am of them, because hers is the greater tragedy if things go wrong. The young have their lives before them and their multitude of interests, while the mother has nothing left but her child, and if she is alienated from it she is poor indeed.

There is no more pathetic figure than that of the woman who lives with her married children. For forty years she has been at the head of her own house, the supreme authority, the she-who-must-be-obeyed. Now she finds herself in another woman's house with her mildest suggestion regarded as interference. For years and years she has been busy, the days not long enough in which to finish her work. Now she finds herself with idle hands, with nothing to do but kill time. In her own community she was a personage of importance. In her son's or daughter's house she is merely John's or Mary's mother.

Strangely enough her own child is changed. She still thinks of John and Mary as little children who must obey her and now she finds that she must obey them. Their ways are not the ways she taught them. They don't cook the way she cooked, or rear their children the way she reared them, and they laugh at her advice instead of taking it.

And Mother finds that if she is not to be a firebrand in her children's home she has to be a rubber stamp. She has to efface herself as much as possible. She has to bite her tongue off before making a suggestion. She has to sit on her hands to keep her fingers out of their pies. She has to see bungling amateurs mess up the jobs that her experience has qualified her to handle as an expert.

This is maddening, and it is no wonder that few women have sufficient self-control to keep silence when they are just boiling over with things that they are dying to say about son-in-law's personal habits, or the way daughter-in-law cooks, or that they fail to realize that their children do not belong to them as much after marriage as they did before.

It is because two generations always look at everything from a different point of view and there are bound to be clashes between them that it is unfortunate for mothers to have to live with their married children, but frequently this cannot be helped, and then it is up to both parties to make mutual concessions and meet the situation with good will and unselfishness and kindness. For not all mother-in-laws are a curse upon a house. Often they are a benediction. Often their gentleness is the oil poured upon the troubled waters of family life. Often their wisdom is a star to steer by.

All of us have been in homes in which there was an old woman who was looked up to with reverence and affection not only by her own child but by a son-in-law or daughter-in-law. To her quiet room they come for counsel in their perplexities. To her the adolescent girls and boys came with their confidences. Little children wept out their sorrows on her breast and babes were cradled in her arms. And when Mother's chair at last was empty every one mourned the passing of the household angel.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been going steadily with a young man for more than two years. It is mutually understood that as soon as he is making enough money we are to be married. Some time ago he was out of work and had a chance to make a living if he had a certain sum of money with which to get started. I advanced him the necessary sum. He is gradually getting on his feet, but he will not be able to repay me for some time yet. Do you think it is quite fair for this man to take other girls out to places of amusement and spend money on them before he has repaid me? I do not want to be small about a thing like this.

A.B.C.

Answer:

It is the hardest thing in the world for a woman to help a man with money without incurring his dislike. The old proverb that says "when you lend money to a friend you lose your friend and your money" goes double when a woman is the lender.

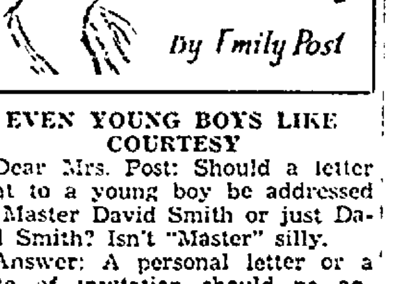

I do not know why there should be something deadly in money when it passes from a woman's hands to a man's, but there is. A man will let a woman nurse him when he is sick; he will let her cook for him and wash for him and wait on him hand and foot; he will go to her for sympathy when he is in trouble; he will take her time and her labor and love her for it, but the minute he takes money from her he hates her.

Perhaps it is because it humiliates him to have to acknowledge that he is less successful than she is, less competent. Perhaps it is because he can't puff out his chest and take a lordly pose before the woman to whom he owes money. However it is, it is there, no matter how generous the woman is about it.

I think that explains why your boy friend is taking out other girls on what is virtually your money. He has to have some woman to look up to him and think he is a Napoleon of finance. When he blows these girls to a good time he inflates his self-esteem, and he couldn't do that with you.

No doubt you will get your money back, but I greatly fear you have lost your sweetheart.

EVEN YOUNG BOYS LIKE COURTESY

Dear Mrs. Post: Should a letter sent to a young boy be addressed to Master David Smith or just David Smith? Isn't "Master" silly.

Answer: A personal letter or a note of invitation should be addressed Master. Even though it does perhaps seem silly, it is really quite important because formalities such as this have a surprisingly beneficial effect upon the manners of young children. If you call to a boy, "Hi, Johnny!" Johnny's responding attitude of mind is "Hi, yourself!" Say "Good morning, Johnny" and Johnny answers, "Good morning," or say "Good morning, John" — with a manner that is courteously formal—and he answers "Good morning, sir." As an example of the beneficial effect of formality on children, you need only consider those who are to sing or play at an entertainment in primary school. If the teacher says "Come now, Johnny, and play your little piece! You will play it nicely now, won't you?" Johnny, feeling suddenly that his eight years has shrunk to about four, gives a miserably babyish performance. But if she had said, "Master John Brown will now play for us," Johnny would immediately feel that his contribution was something to which the audience was going to listen with appreciation and attention, and play his very best.

The Title—"Dr."

Dear Mrs. Post: Is a dentist introduced socially as Dr. Blank? And is it considered good form for him to call himself doctor?

Answer: Yes, to both.

Words

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you write something about the social usage of words. Such words, for example, as swell, boy friend, dandy, gentleman friend, and lady friend, and any others that might be questionable. And will you also please tell me just how one can be sure about words.

Answer: Two of these words, "swell" and "boy friend," have crashed the gates of best society. Very nicest people nowadays consider "swell" applies to character or achievement is highest praise, and the "boy friend" is welcomed everywhere, but "dandy" is an outsider. The words "gentleman friend" and "lady friend" are just as impossible as "drapes" when you mean "draperies" or a "stylish dresser" when you mean she wears smart clothes. By the way, one word avoided by many is "rich." They are afraid it is vulgar and so they say "wealthy" instead. Actually "rich" is the right word — so don't say "wealthy."

As to how one can be sure of words: The most important thing to do is to listen to notable people on the radio, and to read well-written books, such as the novels of Galsworthy, or Walpole, or Mrs. Wharton, etc.

Party Regularity Of Little Concern To New Deal Head

President More Interested In Having Members Obedient to Command

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington —(1)— There's one aspect of the president's intervention in the Democratic primaries which has generally been overlooked. It is the amazing uniformity of silence being observed by every prominent leader in the senate and house.

Lawrence

Mr. Roosevelt insists that, when he intervenes in a party primary, it is not in the capacity of president, but as "leader of the Democratic party." But there are other leaders. Thus, Sam Rayburn of Texas was elected leader of the Democratic party in the house of representatives and John Bankhead of Alabama was elected speaker. Neither one has said a word about the party primaries.

Over in the senate, Vice President Garner has been recognized as the real leader of the Democratic party. Mr. Barkley of Kentucky is known as "majority leader," but it is significant that, while he was glad to receive whatever aid he could from the president's visit to his state, he then went off to Europe without saying a word for or against Senator Tydings of Maryland or Senator George of Georgia or Senator Ellison Smith of South Carolina or the other members of congress who are the objects of the presidential "purge."

Clearly, whenever the subject of discussion is a man's record in congress, it might be supposed that the leaders of the Democratic party in the senate and the house might have something to say. They are strangely silent today. If some treason to the party faith or party platform or party doctrine is involved, why, it is being asked, are these leaders so indifferent to a cause which has seemed to the president so important as to prompt him to make an issue in sensational fashion against certain members of the congress?

The real answer, no doubt, is that, on the subject of intervention in primaries, Mr. Roosevelt does not have the backing of a single outstanding member of his own party in either house of congress. If there is such a leader, let him speak out against Senator Tydings, George or Smith or against Representative O'Connor of New York. It can hardly be possible that any of the leaders are afraid to express themselves. Usually leaders in congress are outspoken about party matters.

It has for years been the custom for the speaker or the party leader in either house to write letters commending the record of a member, but it has never been customary for a party leader to express himself as between candidates in a party primary. The principle of nonintervention is deeply ingrained, though senators have not hesitated to ignore party lines after the nominations have once been made.

If the leaders in congress, therefore, do not consider it proper for them to intervene in the districts or states of their colleagues in party primaries, why does the president feel that he has such an obligation? The truth is Mr. Roosevelt has no particular regard for party regularity or party discipline as such. His concern is more that members shall be obedient to his own command. Leadership in the party has never connoted the right to substitute the will of the socalled head of the party and his bureaucratic machine for the spontaneous will of the party members. Would James M. Cox, Alfred E. Smith or John W. Davis, who once were "leaders," concur in Mr. Roosevelt's idea of intervention in party primaries?

Most of the Democratic leaders at the moment happen to hail from the south. It is no secret that Mr Roosevelt has little use for the southern leadership in congress; in fact, he doubtless shares the view of his brain trust that the so-called leaders and chairmen of committees from southern states are quite lacking in intellectual qualities. To undermine these leaders and go over their heads to the voters has been the persistent plan of the brain trusters who guide the president's political course nowadays.

In the light of this strategy the south has been selected as the object of brain trust intrigue. The recent steps are in perfect sequence. First, the wage and hour law fight was publicized as a means of cutting under the southern senators and representatives. Alliances were made in the north with Republicans in order to carry the legislation through. Then, on top of this, a survey of the south was ordered, the once extinct but recently revived National Emergency council being called in to do the job. Presently, the council came forward with a report which, at the opportune moment, enabled the president to place emphasis on the south as "America's number one problem." Actually, the revolt among the southern Democrats was Mr. Roosevelt's number one political problem, and he set forth in his own way to meet it. For the southern members of congress, when not in sympathy with the administration, can form coalitions too with northern Republicans and upset the administration's schemes, as indeed they did in the supreme court fight and the executive agency reorganizatiton bill.

Mr. Roosevelt has presumably considered the southerners the number one "dumb-bells" in American politics, especially since 1936 at Philadelphia, when the southerners sleepily allowed themselves to lose their veto power in nominating conventions by permitting the two-thirds rule to be abrogated.

The trend toward 1-man control of the Democratic party is unmistakable, but so also is the trend toward revolt, and, when the two trends in terms of votes are measured this autumn, either the Democratic party will be hopelessly split, or 1-man control will be beaten so badly as to remove all doubt of what could happen if the third term crusade is carried forward by the officeholders who fear the loss of their jobs in the event of a Roosevelt retirement.

Selfish politics is the main consideration of the group in power, but it is a safe bet that, in the January session of congress, the political royalists of the White House coterie will find themselves faced on every side by members of congress who, having tasted the wrath of the administration and having come through unscathed, will encourage their colleagues to stand up against 1-man government and political autocracy.

Council to Act Tonight On Fireworks Ordinance

Kaukauna — Two resolutions and an ordinance are slated to come before the common council at its adjourned August meeting at 7 o'clock tonight in the chambers of the municipal building. All three are expected to have no difficulty in passing, as councilmen directed their presentation at their last session.

The ordinance, to be presented by Walter Kilgas, chairman of the ordinance committee, will ban the use of fireworks in Kaukauna beginning with next year. Alderman Edward Steidl suggested the adoption of such a measure at the meeting Aug. 2, and it met with the approval of the council.

One of the resolutions pertains to the proposed $26,000,000 Wisconsin flood control and power development program, expressing Kaukauna's approval of such action. This resolution will be sent to state and national officials. The proposed developments include a diversion canal at Portage to give the Fox river some of the excess flow from the Wisconsin, with the result that the power of plants along the Fox will be increased. The council has already approved the utility's commission project of building, with WPA and PWA, a plant at the site of the old Patten Paper company mill, now owned by the city, and thus an increased flow would benefit Kaukauna.

Superhighway Ordinance

The second resolution asks state and federal highway authorities to make Highway 41 a superhighway from Green Bay to Chicago through widening and other repairs. Two cities, Fond du Lac and De Pere, have passed such resolutions, and have written to ask Kaukauna to do the same.

Alderman Al Hartzheim, chairman of the fire and police commission, is scheduled to report on a request of the firemen that revenues derived from taking Buchanan's fire truck to fires in that township be placed in the firemen's pension fund. Fire Chief Henry Esler said at the last meeting that under the terms of an ordinance of 1916 all such revenues are placed in the fund, and an investigation of the existence of such a measure was to be made before tonight's meeting.

Six Free Acts are Booked for Kaukauna Labor Day Program

Kaukauna — Six free acts have been secured for the annual Labor day picnic here, the committee in charge announced yesterday. The acts will be presented at LaFollette park throughout the day and evening, and not, as formerly, at just one time each day.

Kaukauna — The all-stars of the city league, who will meet the Kaukauna Klubs at 8 o'clock tonight at the local ball park under the lights, got together last night for their first and last practice session on the library grounds. Some twenty of the league's best players participated in the practice.

The all-stars are determined to do collectively what they could not do on their individual teams, defeat the Klubs. Kappell's Tavern was the only team to win as much as one game over the split schedule, the Klubs winning ten as against this one defeat.

When Bill Kuehelmeister toes the mound for the Klubs tonight he'll have a job on his hands. There won't be a weak spot in the all-star array. Most of the city teams had at the most three or four strong batsmen, and pitchers could take things easy towards the end of the batting order, but not tonight. Such sluggers as Vic Gerhartz, possessor of a batting average over .700 for the season, Lee Lambie and others may well turn the contest into a rout.

Alger, Powers to Pitch

Bill Alger and Sherm Powers, who probably will divide hurling duties for the all-stars, have an easier task at hand. The Klubs have a couple who are handy with the stick, but on the whole they'd rather play a tight defensive game and win with a couple runs.

It's certain the all-stars will earn every run they get. The Klub infield of Gerhartz on first, Van Able at second, Kob at short and Koehne at third is the fastest and best defensive group in the league.

Tonight's game will wind up the formal softball season in Kaukauna. Hundreds of tickets have been sold, and many more will be sold at the park. The record attendance for the city league is the 400 who saw the Klubs whip Mankosky's for the city title last Friday, and tonight's game should draw more.

Author Of The Week

LAURA KREY and her long novel ". . . and Tell of Time" are Minnesota's answer to the challenge of Margaret Mitchell. This novel certainly will have to bear up under a lot of comparison with "Gone With the Wind," and probably it will come out of the ordeal very well. Its period: from the end of the Civil war to the '90's; its theme: reconstruction in the South, especially Texas; its manner: gentle; its length: inordinate. (Houghton Mifflin: $2.75.)

If Piano Player Plays Cross-Handed, Look Out

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — A man called up and said he had some tickets for Jose Iturbi, the piano player, and I asked, "Does he do it cross-handed?"

"Does he do it cross-handed?" he said, "Brother, he does it cross-handed, back-handed, blind-folded, anything you wish. Why?"

So I said I would pass it up because—

Well, one time they were having a terrible winter in Florida. No chumps, no fox, plenty of prohibition trouble and the boats were rarin' right on past Miami for Cuba. You could see their lights in the night offshore.

That winter my friend, Mr. Carter Pearce, had a nice little plant where he was prepared to deal a high-class line of wines, liquors and cigars, rare viands and exotic delicacies, and he would sit there night after lonely night, eating cream cheese, and Worcestershire sauce on crackers and sniffing beer [illegible] at the boats going by.

Pegler

He didn't like Cuba too much because he jockeyed a charger in Cuba with the U. S. Cavalry in '98, and now look what the ingrates were doing to him.

Some people called Mr. Pearce Laddy-buck Pearce, but that was a mistake for Lady Book Pearce. He was sometimes known as Laddy-buck Pearce because he wrote a little business around the track occasionally, and, somehow, became the favorite bookmaker of the lady trade. So, Mr. E. Phocian Howard called him Lady Book Pearce and unknowing persons twisted this into Laddy-buck. It was not unbecoming, because Mr. Pearce is a man of charm with his bright, black eyes, his light oak complexion, his actore que dash of white at his temples and his witty manners and gift for pretty compliments.

It was a mistake, but it wasn't a bad fit at that.

Pianist Could Help If Things Went Right

This terrible winter Mr. Pearce had in his plant one of those personal service pianists with a little portable, horse-face piano about the size of a laundry hamper. The gag was to measure the house and pick a table where some devil was tearing up money for fun, then roll the little box over in the lee of that table and start singing request numbers for the members of the fair sex. This would flatter the chump who was lifting the weight for the party and he would order more wine if he was any gentleman in appreciation of this compliment to his pick. The pianist, if he was any way bright, would soon sense the theme song of the party and give it plenty because music stimulates love, especially with wine behind it, and if a chump felt that he was making any time he was like as not to give the pianist a handsome honorarium.

Well, things were just awful, but one night, what do you know, in pops a live one, a little bald guy, with a great bik blue-eyed baby, built like a wrestler and full of high spirits and the mood of dolce far niente. Some like them big. It's a free country. There were about eight in the party, but the little bald guy was the papa. You could see that.

The gentleman ordered wine, which wasn't free but $25 a crock at that time, and Mr. Pearce cracked his hands for that piano mug, but that one had already thrown down his racing form and was bearing down on the table like a taxicab, clouting those keys on the wing. He pulled up alongside with the fancy flourish of a U. S. destroyer and began to bear down on the love angle and the big blonde began to roll her eyes and squeeze the little bald guy's hand. It looked like the rent, all right.

Baldy Hit The Blonde And The Party Was Over

But pretty soon the piano guy began to play cross-handed. He would sing about love and lean toward the big blonde like he was going to put his head on her chest, and then cross his hands on that keyboard, first the right one over the left, then the left over the right in sweeping, graceful strokes and plunk the piano cute licks each time. And pretty soon the big blonde let loose of the little bald guy's hand and put her elbows on the table and her chin on her hands and started heaving and giving that great big blue-eyed business to the piano mug, who didn't have a dime. This lasted about 10 minutes until suddenly the little bald guy jumped up, insulted the big blonde and busted her a beauty, right on one of her pretty blue eyes. There was a terrible scuffle at that, and after Mr. Pearce had regretfully given the whole party a leave into the evening he came back and fired the pianist.

"Never," Mr. Pearce said to me, "Never trust a cross-handed piano player. Make them play it straight, because the minute they begin that cross-handed business they are up to something."

So you can have Jose Iturbi.

"NOT GUILTY" BUT THANKS FOR ASKING

"George W. Hill, President of American Tobacco Company and Vice-President Paul Hahn as you know arrive at Warm Springs Thursday morning. I am trying not to ask many favors but will greatly appreciate it if you would take especially good care of both them because it is important in a business way to me. He has an interesting plan part of which directly concerns his own company and therefore somewhat confidential. Thanks ever so much."

Such is the telegram James Roosevelt, now on the defensive and pressed hard, sent his father's secretary after the election of 1932.

This telegram is supplemented by some conceded facts. Young Roosevelt had already written a policy of life insurance for $2,500,000 on Mr. Hill. He hoped to write more. That the explanation to date has not been altogether candid is revealed from another source. Although young Roosevelt has received but $173,000 from his work as an insurance agent his receipts have not terminated. As many people know an insurance agent generally receives a substantial percentage of the first premium and a smaller percentage of all other premiums, either for a period of years or during the life of the risk, the subsequent payments, of course, being dependent upon the continued payment of the premium by the insured person.

Mr. Roosevelt continues as in his first article to plead an almost childlike innocence. It never occurred to him, he says, that he was being paid for his influence. He used the same methods of denial made by those who think they can convince with a flood of words. A fair sample is this:

"It has never been suggested to me in any form, directly or indirectly, that I intercede for a client or a prospect in any government branch, commission, bureau or department."

The reader need only put this statement alongside young Roosevelt's admitted telegram to his father's secretary. "Take especially good care of both them because it is important in a business way to me"—what sort of intercession would Mr. Roosevelt call that? How did young Roosevelt know that his prospect for further insurance and fine customer in the past, Mr. Hill, was going to see his father?

Either young Roosevelt is wise or otherwise. At 25 years of age his education is terminated and he goes to work. He must be given the presumption of ordinary intelligence for that age even if he did flunk out of college. Can it be possible that he thought that his mental qualities were so brilliant that he could sail in and immediately take the cream of the business from experienced and seasoned men who had for long made a success of their profession? Could he have assumed that making nearly $50,000 a year under such circumstances was wholly disconnected from a highly improper cashing of the father's position?

Those who will throw their memories backward know that other presidents have handled their family matters so as to prevent the stain that James the Wizard has already created. Hoover, Coolidge, and Taft seemed to have no difficulty in this respect.

The more young Roosevelt writes the more he must drop in the estimation of those fair people who only want to get at the truth [illegible] between the lines.

BRAINS IN GOVERNMENT

[illegible] half a century ago James Bryce, an English statesman who was greatly attracted by the American system of government, commented unfavorably however upon our failure to make smart use of the abilities of our great or well experienced [illegible]. He suggested that ex-Presidents [illegible] should become members of the senate from the country at large.

That would bring Mr. Hoover to office at the present time. But we have other equally as great and experienced men, such as Al Smith, who would be almost common choices for the senate even though they failed at greater efforts.

It is not necessary to plunge into some complicated system but it should be pointed out that something of this order must take place if we are to maintain average brain power in the senate, in view of the remarkably incapable men picked up by a wave of popular sentiment and carried headlong into a chamber they neither grace, aid nor improve.

The voter should never forget that speech-making, which is his usual way of becoming acquainted with the senate, cannot be credited with more than 2 per cent of its importance. Individual efforts at preparation by senators and prolonged committee investigations are the matters of true importance. The analysis of stacks of information, the ability to understand the effect of complicated laws, the intellect to comprehend the consequences of a new policy upon existing institutions and the courage to state the truth as it appears by one who can find it and declare it—these are the material labors of an effective senator.

And when the country lacks them the people must suffer.

THE TRADES UNION ACT

The rather furious opposition of Mr. Lewis to an investigation of the operation of British labor laws should not be missed by anyone.

Queer, is it not, that a system that appears to operate in peaceful fashion should be opposed by a labor leader who, presumably, favors peace in the interests of the men.

Mr. Lewis has snapped with rage at the very thought of an investigation of the English system and even tried to prevent the participation by men well known to be favorably inclined to labor's rights.

We are approaching a time in America when a labor leader, big or little, will be judged by the workers according to his ability to effect constructive results through compromise, conference and conciliation. Anyone can be a bully. Nothing is easier than to start a fight.

Not long ago, as described by The Spectator, a liberal English newspaper, one Jones, President of the Mine Workers' Federation, said:

"Today the strike weapon is out of date unless faced with intractable opposition."

The Spectator said that the assembled mine workers "warmly applauded this sensible statement." Further commenting the newspaper editorially remarks:

"Union leaders and employers have learned that there is nothing to be gained by carrying a dispute to the point at which a strike can no longer be avoided. True, there is always the right to strike in reserve. It cannot be ignored. But it is a weapon which need never be used unless one side or the other has gone out of its senses."

It should be noted that peace in British internal affairs has been effective only during the last 12 years, and as a result of the Trade's Union Act which was passed by Parliament after the 1926 coal strike which was turned into a general strike against the nation. It was the threat of paralysis, and the civil war which must ensue which moved British statesmen to pass a law so generally accepted as just that no effort has been made in Parliament since to amend it.

We may modify or disregard some of its provisions as we conclude they are inappropriate for the American scenery but to close our minds against the British experience or even to embrace it without investigation and consideration would be approaching close to stupidity.

And no nation can afford to be stupid in important matters.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

HER FRIENDSHIP

Here is no swift and easy flight
To friendship . . . She prefers
The long way 'round to its delight;
But what staunch friends are hers!

She never can be forced to give
Her friendship's gentle balm.
But as the years pass, you will live
To feel her quiet charm.

I hope that I will sometime find
Her friendship blessing me.
I think perhaps she has divined
My own heart's constancy.

When I am far away I dream
That she knows my desire,
And see in her deep eyes the gleam
Of friendship's sacred fire.

OLD CARS AND NEW

There is a happy augury not only for the automobile industry itself but for general business, in which it plays so important a part, in Secretary Roper's summary of the motor-car situation in the United States. The report of the Secretary of Commerce bears out earlier indications that dealers' showrooms are rapidly being cleared of used as well as new cars. This situation of low inventory as the new model-year is about to begin is a healthy one. From the Secretary's figures, new-car stock in dealers' hands seems likely, by the end of this month, to be reduced to an average of four cars per outlet, the lowest position since 1934.

While details of the 1939 models will remain closely guarded secrets almost up to the time of the National Automobile Show, which opens in New York on Nov. 11, it seems certain that the industry has prepared a tempting dish for the new season. Radical mechanical changes probably will not make their appearance, but modifications of design are expected to go considerably farther than they did with the 1938 models. These modifications will be toward more advanced streamlining, with emphasis on improved vision; still greater ease of handling as effected by balance and by transmission design and still further emphasis on those factors which make for greater safety on the road.—New York Times.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—There would hardly be such a thing as the Broadway theatre if it wasn't for Mr. and Mrs. Out-of-Towner. Broadway takes the bows, but the Road is the hero of the box office.

Max Gordon's production of "The Great Waltz," an elaborate musical extravaganza, played nine months at the Center Theatre and didn't even pay the cost of its production. They took "The Great Waltz" on the Road. It toured two years and made a fortune.

This was irony. Gordon is one of the New York producers with a distinct Broadway complex. He believes if a show is a hit on Broadway, that's all there is to it. One friend put it: "Gordon believes that if he gets a good notice from Atkinson of the Times, the show's a success—even if it loses money!"

"The Great Waltz" as produced in New York called for revolving stages and all types of staging innovations. If there ever was a show that did not lend itself to going on tour, that was it. To adapt it for theatres elsewhere and to accommodate it to movement by train, extensive changes in scenery were necessary. And "The Great Waltz," which left New York in the red, came back two years later with nearly $900,000 on the profit side. Pittsburgh, Chicago, Columbus and all the towns on the Road did that.

Helen Hayes and "Victoria Regina" were a Broadway hit, but it was the Road that really poured record gold into Producer Gilbert Miller's bank account. "Regina" was sold out in many places for months before it opened.

This Helen Hayes has a habit of drawing capacity business, probably the old story of the world beating a path to the door of he who builds a better mousetrap; for Miss Hayes generally does a better job of acting than others.

Katharine Cornell is another star who is awake to the fact that Broadway fame is generally less substantial than the reception a good play and a good actress can get on the Road. George M. Cohan, a real trouper, is taking his delightful impersonation of President Roosevelt on tour this fall because he, too, knows how important Kansas City and Kokomo are to the American theatre.

Sam Harris, with a canny knowledge of the profit a good show can make outside New York, is opening the new Moss Hart-George Kaufman show, "The Fabulous Invalid," simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

George Abbott is another Broadway showman who carries New York hit plays to the distant places. His "Brother Rat" and "Room Service" toured last season from September to June. It is Abbott's contention that Road shows should start swinging around the circuit while the show is still playing on Broadway. This deprives the Road of a chance to see the New York "first" company, of course, but it enables the rest of the country to see the show while it still is doing business in New York; and sometimes the Road company is better than the original.

Only the top flight actors and actresses show real enthusiasm for the Road—performers like Hayes, Cornell and Cohan. Lesser performers generally cancel out of the cast of a show that is going on tour, preferring to remain in town and take their chances on getting parts in a new show. Very few of the original cast of "I'd Rather Be Right," for instance, will be with Cohan when he starts traveling in the fall. Among those who prefer not to troupe is Joy Hodges, who was Cohan's feminine lead.

Even those shows who have long and prosperous Broadway runs owe a bigger debt to Mr. and Mrs. Out-of-Towner than to native New Yorkers. A check was made last year at an Abbott show. Members of the audience were asked where they lived. To the surprise of everybody, they found that about 40 per cent of the audiences were not only from out of town, but from outside the metropolitan area. The percentage grew during the week. Mondays and Tuesdays found bigger turnouts of New Yorkers. Toward the end of the week the crowds grew—and the percentage of out-of-towners grew.

It is this 40 per cent out-of-town business that keeps Broadway from being just another Main Street.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Aug. 21, 1928

Appleton and adjacent territory was in the path of a severe electrical wind storm the previous night which caused damages running into thousands of dollars. Telephone and power service was crippled and trees were uprooted. The grandstand at the Kimberly ball park was blown over and many outbuildings and small sheds on nearby farms collapsed. Tornadoes took a toll of eight dead and more than three score injured and caused property damage of more than a million dollars in southern Minnesota and northern Iowa.

More than a hundred cans of rainbow trout fry were planted in small streams on the east side of the Wolf river last Saturday by Mark Catlin and James Wood, Appleton, and Harry S. Babcock, Neenah.

One of the largest audiences that ever filled the Appleton theater was delightfully entertained the previous evening by Maude Adams and her efficient company of players in Peter Pan. It was Miss Adams' first appearance in the city.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Grover

Washington — Rumors of war and internal disorders are reputed to scare travelers away so we checked a tourist bureau here to find out what was happening about Mexican and European travel.

A brown-haired girl with eyes like this and that took us in tow for a brief lecture on travel and if it hadn't been for our own deeply rooted reserve we might have bought a ticket for Timbuctoo. But anyway, what she said about Mexican and European travel was this:

Ships bound for Mexico from the Atlantic seaboard are billed to capacity. They can make no reservations during August, and even September is selling out fast.

"Haven't people been reading the newspapers about Mexican labor troubles, and an almost revolution of a prominent rancher and his men, and seizure of oil and farm lands?"

"Sure," says she, "and they want to go there nevertheless."

Then we reminded her with regard to Europe that August was a bad month for European wars but she said the tourists didn't seem to mind. Bookings for Europe were later this year than last, but that she explained was because the coronation last year started them off earlier.

People wanting to go to Europe now don't ask any questions about war possibilities. In 1914 an awful lot of Americans went to Europe in spite of current war scares which they forgot to ask about. Some of them had a pesky time getting back home.

Corn Tempest

While there is yet no war in Europe (outside of Spain) there almost was a war in the Department of Agriculture when officials mixed signals on deciding what the corn supply was to be.

A lot depended on the amount of corn. If the estimated total of this year's crop plus the carryover from last year exceeded certain limits, an election would have to be held in the corn belt to determine whether farmers would be compelled to lock up part of their crop to protect prices on the rest.

The department, with a smattering of rebellion on its hands in the corn belt already, didn't want to hold a referendum on whether to impose marketing quotas. Some officials feared farmers would defeat the proposal, and thus throw down the farm law in its first real test.

The Winner

The department and the corn crop were like two boys spoiling for a fight. One says: "If you cross this line I'll hit you."

Early this year the department says: If the estimated corn supply (crop plus carryover) passes 2,773,000,000 bushels, we must call for a marketing quota referendum.

Well, the estimated crop and carryover passed that level and the department, backing away, then said: If the supply passes 2,825,000,000 bushels, we surely must call for a marketing quota. That was in July. And the estimated supply did pass that figure. In August, the department, by law, couldn't back off any farther. It said: If the supply passes 2,913,000,000 bushels, we can't escape asking marketing quotas.

There arose the hitch. One bureau of the department said the carryover would be 350,000,000 bushels as a minimum. That would have forced the total above 2,913,000,000—the deadline. Almost in a fury higher department officials contradicted the 350,000,000 bushel estimate, insisting it would be only 320,000,000. That brought the total estimated supply down to 2,886,000,000 bushels and saved the day. No quota referendum was needed.

Gathering Junk Keeps Cartmen off Relief Rolls

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago's pushcart men, lean and in tatters, don't accept relief as long as their junk collecting business nets them from 35 to 60 cents a day.

The army of "pushcart" men has grown to such proportions as to attract attention.

Day and night more than 5,000 of these men struggle through the streets and alleys, piling their carts high with junk, mostly boxes and old paper.

The carts are loaned from central junk yards. Paper brings the best prices — 15 cents per 200 pounds for ordinary paper and 15 cents for 100 pounds of the corrugated stuff.

A good hauler can make from 35 to 60 cents a day. One said there are lots of men with trades gathering up paper these days. They make barely enough to keep body and soul together but — most important of all — it keeps them off relief.

Report Mountain Sheep Are Fast Disappearing

Longmont, Colo. — (AP) — When rangers of Rocky Mountain national park discovered a large Rocky Mountain big horn ram ill on a high mountain cliff they hurriedly summoned an ambulance, then carried the ram down the mountain.

When the ambulance arrived the ram was rushed to the park stock farm but no veterinarians were available so physicians were summoned. The ram died soon after they arrived.

Rangers said they made desperate efforts to save the ram because they hoped to learn something about the cause of disease that is killing many big horn sheep. In the last 10 years the death rate has been extremely heavy and not more than 150 sheep survive. Rangers fear the park flock may become extinct.

TOUGH ON THE NERVOUS SYSTEM

What Is Your News I. Q.?

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair, 80 good. Answers on market page.

1. The only woman member of the U. S. Senate is smiling over her renomination. Know her?
2. Where is Krum Elbow? Why is it in the news?
3. Name the chairman of the House committee investigating un-American activities.
4. What is the latest country to sign a reciprocal trade agreement with the U. S.
5. Why was apprehension felt over Germany's war maneuvers?

Your Birthday

"VIRGO"

If August 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m.; from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m., and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m.; from 4:45 to 6:45 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m., until midnight.

If you permit a lack of energy to cause you to procrastinate this day, you may have many reasons to regret doing so. Much valuable time is apt to be wasted in listening to people who have little to do, outside of gossiping and talking on frivolous subjects. Absent-minded handling of documents and money, may cause unnecessary worry, so keep your mind upon whatever you are doing, if it includes the handling of anything of value. Many people will feel they are privileged to pay unexpected visits, this day. It might be well then to be prepared to receive guests. Be charitable in your comments regarding the actions or motives of those with whom you are closely associated. Fault-finding will be one of this day's most disagreeable traits. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who have great hopes of winning a matrimonial prize, must guard against selfish actions or making unreasonable requests.

If a woman and August 24 is your birthday, do not be a slave to superstitions, for they can make you quite miserable. You may be unduly suspicious regarding someone near and dear to you, by unconsciously allowing jealousy to sway your good judgment. If not engaged in business or a profession, you ought to take up some kind of work that will keep your mind occupied. You have probably a lot of nervous energy that requires some outlet, to keep you from being restless and discontented. Missionary, educational, or social welfare work, an active interest in politics, music, radio broadcasting, selling or writing may more than compensate you for the efforts you put into anyone of them. You are likely to display excellent taste and wisdom in the selection of the man you marry.

The child born on August 24, has an acquisitive nature, is very impulsive, generous and affectionate. This youngster ought to possess an exceptionally good memory, and learn things with a surprising amount of ease.

If a man and August 24 is your natal day, your will power and ambition in all likelihood, will enable you to surmount all difficulties. Through law, the stage, laboratory, lecture platform, pulpit, literary work, promoting, painting or some commercial line of activity, you should meet with a great amount of success.

Successful People Born on August 24:

William A. Proctor—manufacturer.
Henry Stevens—bibliographer.
Joseph Buchanan—inventor and author.
John Dickins—clergyman.
Elisha Williams—a president of Yale.
James W. Wallack—actor.
Charles F. McKim—architect.

Personal Health Talks

ADVICE FOR EXPECTANT FATHERS

After all it is no joke for a man having his first baby. Nor the next, nor the next — but today's expectant fathers wouldn't be interested in that.

A few suggestions may show the prospective parent how to be happy is something for people preparing for parenthood to think about: Why do the common schools of this country provide no instruction for the future parents? Why is such vital knowledge left for boys and girls, young men and young women, to pick up as and where they can find it?

I engaged the best doctor in town three years before the birth of my first baby. That may be a little early, but just the same you can't engage your doctor too early for the best interest of all concerned. In any case it is well to have the counsel and advice of a good doctor for as many months in advance as you are reasonably certain of the coming event: that will be 278 days in some cases; six months in more cases; 4½ months in any case.

Picking the best doctor in the community was simple enough for me. I was he. Or at any rate I thought so then. I might not be quite so confident now. Still, I got thru with it all right, and made certain about asepsis—I was afraid the other doctors, the older ones, in the community might not use a rigidly aseptic technic. Not that I would mind so much about other people's babies, if they preferred the other doctors, but this was my baby.

What is the sense of running to a doctor at that early stage of the affair? Can't any older woman tell the expectant mother all she needs to know about the business? Or if there is a midwife in the neighborhood can't she look after the preparation for maternity for a fraction of what a doctor will charge?

Approximate date of confinement may be determined by counting 280 days (ten lunar months) forward from first day of last menstuation; or more early by counting three months back from that day and adding seven days. Delivery will generally occur a day or two before or after the computed date.

If children received a fair deal in the common school engaging the doctor at the first indication of possible pregnancy would not be so necessary, for prospective parents would have some general idea of the care they should take. But since our educational system contrives to keep people ignorant, and therefore good customers for the quacks and nostrums, the only way the little stranger can get a break is for his parents-to-be to buy medical instruction and care for mother and child from the very first, and no monkey shines.

For any information or advice the amateur mother may require her husband should see to it that she gets it straight from her doctor—and having gotten it from the doctor she should heed it and ignore any and all gratuitous advice from other sources.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Psychotherapy

Can a specialist who calls himself a psychotherapist, a doctor of the subconscious mind, remove obsessions and relieve the distress of nervous or mental tension by hypnosis? (H.P.E.)

Answer—No. Better consult a reputable psychiatrist, a physician who diagnoses and treats mental disturbances, one your own medical man will recommend.

Home Embalming

To keep canned foods I have been told salicylic acid must be added. Is this so? Are there any harmful effects to persons using the canned food? (Mrs. R.S.)

Answer—It is neither necessary nor adviseable. If the food is not fresh and clean enough when canned, or the canning process itself is not sufficient to assure preservation, then it would be better to worry along from season to season without canned food.

Lady on the Lawn

I am 40, business until last year, now gardening favorite hobby. I like to mow our lawn 50 by 120 feet, and friends tell me this will harm me. Had breast tumor removed 7 years ago. Excellent health since. (Mrs. P.C.)

Answer—Go right ahead, Ma'am, and if it bothers the neighbors too much, trundle the mower down to our house and play around on our lawn as much as you like.

Albuquerque, N. M. —(AP)— The discovery that rats, like human beings, are right or left "handed" and ambidexterous has led to a series of interesting experiments at the University of New Mexico.

The discovery was made by Dr. George M. Peterson, professor of psychology, and an assistant, who observed that certain rats used in a psychology laboratory always used the left paw in reaching through a cage for food.

An apparatus was constructed in which the rats could obtain food only by manipulating a lever. The rats quickly learned to do this. Some always used the left paw. Others used the right.

Dr. Peterson said there is little difference in the mechanism of the nervous system of rats and men.

Outagamie County Trunk Roads are Made Arterials

Highway Committee Takes Action to Cut Accident Toll

The county highway committee yesterday at the courthouse voted to make all county trunk highways arterials except where they intersect with state and federal highways. Where county highways intersect, all four crossings will be arterials.

A petition also will be made to the state highway department to make Highway 47 an arterial at the intersection of Highway 54 at Black Creek.

The action on increasing the number of arterial stops in the county was taken by the committee yesterday after several weeks of study. Information from the state highway department showed that 67 per cent of traffic accidents involve persons living in the locality and who should be acquainted with dangerous crossings.

Contracts for loading and hauling about 1,000 cubic yards of stone at 40 cents per yard for County Trunk JJ and for hauling a similar amount for County Trunks C and E for 20 cents per yard were awarded to Anton Mankosky, Kaukauna.

Bills amounting to $3,252 03 were allowed.

DISCUSS CZECH FATE

Kiel, Germany—(AP)—Czechoslovakia's fate was listed as one of the chief conversational topics between Adolf Hitler and Admiral Nicholas Horthy today as the German and Hungarian leaders went to inspect heavily-fortified Helgoland.

Informed nazi quarters said the two statemen saw eye to eye on the problem whose "satisfactory" solution might enable Hungary to grant Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy their wish for an Hungarian-Yugoslav reconciliation.

These sources pointed out that Hungary would like the autonomy of Hungarians in Czechslovakia, if not their return to Hungary, just as Hitler wants the autonomy or return of 3,500,000 sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Might Forget Demands

It was said, too, that should this come to pass for Hungary, that country might forget revisionist demands—growing out of the post-war Trianon peace treaty which took away a third of her 10,500 000 population—on sections now belonging to Yugoslavia.

The German chancellor and the Hungarian regent aboard the speedy yacht Grille traversed the famous Kiel canal, while "heiling" thousands lined the banks. The yacht passed an Italian freighter, whose crew gave lusty fascist cheers.

Trying to Assemble Justices to Rule on Coalition Listings

Madison — (AP) — Justice John D. Wickhem was seeking today to recall associates on the state supreme court from vacations to hear the petition of Edward Ihlenfeldt, of Milwaukee, for an original ruling on Secretary of State Theodore Dammann's decision to give coalition candidates a place on Republican and Democratic ballots.

Justice Wickhem, deploring the "unconscionable short time" in which the court would have to act, told Attorney John Cavey, Milwaukee, he would try to assemble a quorum of the justices. The court clerk had not been advised at noon to schedule a hearing.

Ihlenfeldt, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, served notice on Dammann he would attempt to have the high court rule on the legality of placing the name of Robert K. Henry, coalition candidate for governor, on the two tickets for the September 20 primary. Printers will start work on the ballots Sept. 3.

Eric R. Miller, federal meteorologist, said the wind was clocked at 28 miles an hour, but that trees in its path probably lessened the force. Lightning crackled almost continuously.

The Madison Gas and Electric and the Wisconsin Telephone companies had workmen clearing away debris over a wide area. William Clark, assistant Dane county agent, said the rain was especially hard on farmers who have not threshed their grain and that some corn was flattened. Hail fell at Dodgeville.

The storm wrecked a boiler plant, blew down trees, flattened corn and caused considerable other damage near Sparta.

The wind toppled a steel smokestack on the Pet Milk company, plunging it through a roof and wrecking the boiler plant. Sides of several buildings were blown off and many trees were down.

Sparta was without light, telephone and telegraph service for several hours due to breaks in lines.

EVENING SHUFFLEBOARD MATCH UNDER THE LIGHTS

August W. Laabs was making an important play in a shuffleboard match the other night when a Post-Crescent photographer snapped the above picture. Mr. Laabs' son, Earl Laabs, is awaiting the outcome.

The match was held on the outdoor shuffleboard court in the Laabs yard, where there is something doing every evening. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Shuffleboard Clan Meets Regularly in Laabs' Yard

The bugs get pretty thick on summer evenings, but they have to form flying wedges before the shuffleboard game in the yard at the August W. Laabs home on Randall avenue stops.

The shuffleboard season is now in full swing and almost any evening you could wander up there and find Mr. Laabs and his friends hard at it, aiming down the smooth surface of the court and then carefully shoving the discs on their way.

Shuffleboard is an old English game that is rather popular in America. You line up wooden discs in front of you, sight down the court, and then send them sliding along, hoping they'll either stop in a scoring area or knock an opponent's disc out of the pay places.

You use a cue about the length of a hoe handle that has a curved piece of wood at the end to fit the discs. It looks like a device you might use in capturing a quart bottle off a high shelf if you didn't have a ladder or a chair and wanted the bottle awfully bad.

The court in the Laabs yard is definitely of the better class Made of re-inforced concrete six inches thick, it is—as the saying goes—smooth as glass The court is 53 feet long. The surface is waxed regularly. Now and then the bugs faint and fall on the court and it gets a bit sticky, but that is only a minor maladjustment to the shuffleboard fraternity.

Mr. Laabs, incidentally, is king of his own court. "Well, I've had quite a bit of experience," he says in explaining his prowess at the game He's played it a lot during sojourns in the southland during winters.

The game does not bring out the brute in man and is very definitely not one of great action, but shuffleboard players tell you there's plenty of exercise connected with it. "Just get in there and push that cue around for a couple hours and you'll know it the next day," one remarked.

Mr. Laabs and his friends started the season rather early this year. In March, it was, when those first nice days appeared. The court will be in use until snow flies.

William Rohan, Jr., Route 4, Kaukauna, Selected By Road Committee

William Rohan, Jr., son of William Rohan, Sr., route 4, Kaukauna, assemblyman, was named to the county traffic squad by the county highway committee yesterday afternoon at the courthouse. About 15 persons took examinations for the position yesterday morning.

Nation's Hog Population Increasing With Cheap Feed, Good Market Price

Chicago—(AP)—Rebuilding of the national hog population progressed under the most favorable circumstances in years today on the fifth anniversary of the 1933 government slaughtering program's inauguration.

Swine herds on farms have come back barely 13 per cent from the century's low point reached following the serious 1934 drought, but an abundance of cheep feed, a good market price and favorable weather conditions are stimulating breeding and fattening

The hog price is more than double what it was the day the first of 6 000,000 small pigs and 200,000 bred sows sold to the government were killed. In August, 1933, hogs brought around $4 per hundredweight, a recovery of less than a dollar from the record lows touched in 1932.

Corn, on the other hand, was priced around 50 cents a bushel, which means that the price of the principal feed in raising and fattening swine was too high for profitable conversion into pork.

The current hog price of close to $9 offers an unusually favorable feeding ratio, according to livestock men, with corn quoted around 50 cents.

The nation's hog population on Jan 1, 1933, was estimated at 62 000,000 head, highest in a decade. During 1933 it dropped almost 4,000,000 and by Jan 1, 1935, was at 39,000,000 At the start of 1938 the total was 44,418,000 head. This year's spring pig crop was 13 percent larger than a year ago. The number of sows expected to farrow before winter also is an increase over last season.

Chemist Reports No Poison in Body Of Doctor's Wife

LaClede, Mo.—(AP)—The fruit cellar death mystery of pretty Mrs. Ella Lamance, 29, was given another baffling angle today when Prosecutor G. Derk Green announced a state chemist's findings of no poison in the internal organs.

Dr. William F. Lamance, the woman's husband, who is held on a charge of murdering her, has contended his wife committed suicide and a private chemist, employed by his attorneys, reported Saturday the discovery of a virulent poison in a portion of viscera.

The body of the former nurse was found in the fruit cellar behind the Lamance home Aug. 16, the night Dr. Lawrence reported to officers she was missing Investigating officers believe the former nurse died several days previously.

"The state chemist reported to me that he examined liver, stomach, intestines and brain for all types of poison and none was found," Prosecutor Green said.

McAdoo Foe Charges California Senator Was Ku Klux Klan Member

Los Angeles —(AP)— Peirson M Hall, former United States attorney, charged today that Senator William G. McAdoo of California was a member of the Ku Klux Klan in 1924 when he sought the Democratic nomination for president.

The accusation brought into the open the political enmity between McAdoo and Hall, who failed to win re-appointment to his federal post. Hall announced later he would oppose McAdoo at the polls but withdrew from the senatorial race to support Sheridan Downey.

Addressing an East Los Angeles meeting last night, Hall held aloft what he said was a photograph of a Klan "imperial passport," made out to "William G. McAdoo" in February, 1924, and signed by "H. W. Evans, imperial wizard and imperial cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan."

Senator McAdoo replied today: "Any statement directly or indirectly linking my name with the Ku Klux Klan is wantonly false and any paper connecting my name with that organization also is wantonly false."

PASSPORT 'FALSE'

Atlanta — (AP) — Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, declared today any klan passport purporting to have been signed by him for William G. McAdoo was "false."

"I have never signed any passport for McAdoo," Dr. Evans commented upon charges made at Los Angeles by Pierson M. Hall, former United States attorney, against the California senator.

SNAKE HUNT OFFICIALLY ENDS WITH CAPTURE OF 6-FOOTER

Menasha—Menasha's snake hunt is officially over. Shown above are Sally, the now deceased snake which escaped from a carnival the latter part of June and which caused much disturbance by her reappearance, and two of the most persistent hunters of the posse which searched in vain for Sally. The snake hunters are Arthur Gutzman, Menasha fireman, at the left, and Traffic Officer Lawrence Jankowski at the right. They are holding Sally's 6 feet, 1 inch of length in front of them. Honors for killing Sally, however, went to George Gracyalny, 694 Tayco street. During the hunt Gutzman donned his rubber boots and led the search in, around and even under the old barn where Sally made her home while Jankowski patroled the outside with a sawed-off shotgun, ready to blast Sally out of existence. No such fate befell Sally. She was killed Monday with several blows from a club by Gracyalny a month after her first appearance and nearly a mile away from the site of her original operations (Post-Crescent Photo)

There's Been a Serpent Caught at Menasha but Arguments Rage About What Kind, Where From and How Come

Menasha -- Sally the serpent is gone from our alley but the arguments over her still rage. The arguments center around whether or not the reptile killed Monday morning by George Gracyalny, 694 Tayco street, really was Sally and also as to what species of snake the dead reptile belongs to.

Harold Berro, cashier at the water and light office in the city office building, yesterday got several huge volumes on reptiles from Elisha D. Smith library and started looking at pictures, comparing them with the dead snake which was on display at the city office. After much deliberation he announced that the snake was of the species called "drymarchon corais couperi", more commonly called indigo snake. The snake is the largest found in the eastern United States and sometimes grows to 9 feet in length. It is also called gopher snake. The one killed yesterday was 6 feet, 1 inch long.

C. A Heckrodt, city treasurer, who occupies the cage next to Mr. Berro, declares that it is a blue racer, and so the argument wages Arthur Gutzman, who has hunted snakes in the west, declares that it is a black snake. All three varieties are of the same species.

Chief Offers Opinion

Police Chief Alex Slomski today declared that the snake which was killed yesterday is the one which escaped from the carnival in June and caused the highly-organized snake hunt which started when the reptile reappeared in a pigeon loft at 402 Garfield avenue on July 13. The chief declares that no such snakes ordinarily are found around here.

Mr. Berro, consulting his books again, adds evidence to the possibility that the snake may be the escaped carnival performer. One of the main points of difference has been that Sally was light colored while the snake killed yesterday was dark. Mr. Berro says that indigo snakes are light colored until they reach their third year and suggests that Sally may have shed her skin since her escape and may literally have changed her spots. A section of light-colored skin was found when the giant snake-hunt was on.

As to the difference in size between the reported 12 feet of the pigeon killer and the 6 feet of the dead snake perhaps can be laid to too vivid imaginations. Large crowds stood in front of the window at the city office yesterday afternoon to view the snake. George Gracyalny reclaimed his victim last night and intends to make a belt out of the skin.

Neenah Football Squad Will Start Practice Sept. 1

14 Lettermen, Other Candidates to Get Equipment Aug. 31

Neenah — Coach George Christoph today issued a call for candidates for Neenah High school's football campaign in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference this fall, and the Red Rocket coach said that he will start practice at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Sept. 1. Candidates will receive gridiron togs at the high school the preceding day.

Practice sessions will be held twice a day until school opens Sept. 6. The first session will be held at 10 o'clock in the mornings and the second in the afternoon. When classes have been resumed, the gridders will practice in the afternoons only.

The coach's principal problem at present is not a lack of experienced players but an overabundance of ends and a dearth of backfield men, centers and quarterbacks. Fourteen lettermen from last year's squad will report for the opening drill, six of whom were flankmen last season.

Three Veteran Backs

Only three veteran backfield men are available, but the coach said he plans to convert a couple of the ends into ball luggers. Christoph also will be short handed on centers. Last year he converted Kenneth LaBumbard into a pivot man, the only returning letterman to hold down a center job. He plans to try out other returning linemen for the berth, however.

The most serious handicap facing the coach, however, is the lack of a quarterback. None of the returning lettermen handled that assignment and with so few veteran backfield men, the coach anticipates a real job to groom a field general.

There will be plenty of competition for front wall jobs. Co-captain Robert Vanderwalker and Douglas Nelson are the likely candidates for guard berths, while James Anderson and Donald Blank will be assigned to tackle positions. The ends include Dan Schmidt, Donald Bentzen, Norman Zimmerman, Donald McDairmid, Arthur Krause, and Harold Hackstock.

Promising Prospects

Co-captain Warren Kettering, Kenneth Krueger, and Clifton Allen are the returning backfield lettermen.

Christoph said he will not have to depend entirely upon his lettermen, however, for he has several promising prospects coming up this fall. A couple of sophomores will be making serious bids for first string jobs as well as several juniors and seniors who saw action last fall but didn't qualify for a letter.

Although he hasn't seen his squad in action since last fall, Christoph didn't appear to be too gloomy about this year's prospects despite the fact that the Rockets open their season with three home games

The Rev. and Mrs. Paulin, their son-in-law and daughter, the Rev. and Mrs. Carl F. Zietlow, and family, left Monday for Ohio.

The Rev. Mr. Paulin was ordained to the ministry when the annual conference met in Tiffin, Ohio, in 1888, and he served that church as pastor for seven years, from 1924 to 1931.

As camp pastor with the Red Cross, the Rev. Mr. Paulin, served for two years at Camp Sherman during the war. Married 40 Years

Not only does this year mark the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination, but also the fortieth anniversary of his marriage and the eighteth anniversary of his birth.

The Rev. Carl F. Zietlow who is pastor of the First Evangelical church in Neenah and Mrs. Zietlow, the former Ruth Paulin, were married in the Tiffin church by the latter's father, so the program tonight also will be an anniversary for them. Both the Rev. and Mrs. Zietlow, together with their two sons will participate in the recognition service. While at Tiffin, they will be guests of a college classmate of Mrs. Zietlow's, Miss Ruth Dietzel.

The program this evening in the Ohio church is also to be featured by musical selections by the members of the choir which the Rev. Mr. Paulin directed and talks by friends of both Mr. and Mrs. Paulin. Mrs. Paulin was corresponding secretary of the Ohio Branch Woman's Missionary society and secretary of the Little Heralds. Paulin, 221 Bond street, Neenah, shown above, will be guest of honor this evening at a special service in the Ebenezer Evangelical church at Tiffin, Ohio, as he observes the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination in the ministry of Evangelical churches. He has acted as guest preacher in First Evangelical church of Neenah of which his son-in-law, the Rev. Carl F. Zietlow, is pastor.

Falcons Will Play Merchant Nine for Twin City Pennant

Menasha, Neenah Teams To Clash Sunday at Washington Park

Menasha — The Polish Falcons will play the Neenah Merchants for the Twin City championship at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning at Washington park, according to Arty Buzanowski, manager of the Falcons. Only one game will be played to decide the title.

The game also will be the last chance for Twin City fans to see the Falcons in action before they leave for the state amateur tournament at Milwaukee which runs from Sept. 4 through 12.

In agreeing to play the game Sunday for the Twin City championship, the Falcons really are in a generous mood as the Merchants can present little claim for the Twin City title. The Falcons won both games played between the two cities.

The Falcons won the first meeting between the two teams, 7 to 4, with Kosloski coming through in a relief role. They opened the second half of the league schedule with a 9 to 1 victory over the Merchants

Practice Tonight

The Falcons will be allowed four extra battery men, who must be selected from the Fox River Valley league, and one utility man to bolster their team for the state tournament. Manager Buzanowski is considering the rosters of the other teams, attempting to decide what men to pick. Outside of Kosloski there is not an outstanding hurler in the league, making the selection of pitchers difficult for the Falcon's manager.

Practice for the city championship game as well as for the state tournament will start at 6 o'clock tonight, according to the manager. The Falcons will drill at the Menasha baseball park every night this week through Saturday.

Courshon Fined $1 and Costs on Assault Charge

Justice Says Picketing for Other Than Labor Reasons Is Illegal

Neenah —Gilbert Courshon, manager of the Embassy theater, was found guilty of assault and battery upon Edwin Hockholzer, 16, the complainant, when he pleaded nolo contendere before Justice L. O. Cooke in court this morning. He was fined $1 and costs.

Courshon was arraigned before Justice Gaylord C. Loehning last week on complaint of Hochholzer, the picket who paraded in front of the theater last Wednesday afternoon, with a sign, "This theater is unfair to the citizens of Neenah." The defendant was granted a change of venue to Justice Cooke's court.

Hochholzer charged that Courshon assaulted him Wednesday afternoon, attempting to tear the sign off his back. Hochholzer was picketing while a stage show was being held in the theater. The theater has been closed during the summer months.

In his decision, Justice Cooke stated, "The defendant in this action attempted to prevent the picketing of his theater by the complainant who is not involved in any labor dispute with the defendant but who nevertheless, together with another, picketed the theater.

Explains Case

"In an attempt to stop the picketing which was taking defendant's trade away and interfering with defendant's right to do business, the defendant in an effort to remove the signs used force upon the complainant, who in turn complains of an assault and battery," the statement declared.

"There seems to be a misunderstanding prevalent relative to the rights of persons to picket. Picketing while in derogation of the common law is allowed by statute but only in matters involving labor disputes. Peaceful picketing and patrolling, and the publicizing of labor disputes as authorized by the state labor code is one thing but picketing a place of business not for labor reasons but for what appears to be for the purpose of injuring or destroying another's business is quite another matter and thoroughly illegal and should be restrained by law enforcing officers as it subjects the conspirators to possible criminal prosecution."

"It is suggested that those dissatisfied with local theater conditions refrain from future picketing and direct their energy in an effort to organize citizens and business men and secure a modern theater if disappointed in the operation and management of another's legitimate theater business," according to the opinion.

The theater manager had asked the police to stop the picketing.

It's People and Products

TEMPESTUOUS Bette Davis was born in Lowell, Massachusetts, on April 5th, 1908, and primly christened "Ruth Elizabeth," a name which she changed in high school days to "Bet-te." While in Cushing Academy she appeared in many amateur plays and took up nature dancing. She was at the Cape Cod Playhouse when James Light, the director, offered her a part in a Broadway stage play. Others followed and her work was so satisfactory that she was hailed to Hollywood.

RAVEN-HAIRED Kay Francis, who is known as the best-dressed woman of the film capital, was born in Santa Barbara, California, though her mother, the actress Katherine Clinton, brought her East when she was but three. Educated in convents, in Miss Fuller's School in Ossining, New York and at the Cathedral School in Garden City, Long Island, she later took a business course, acted as secretary to several socially prominent women, and then toured Europe for a year.

Fireworks Ban to Be Considered at Informal Session

Menasha City Officials Invited to Meeting at Neenah Thur-day

Neenah—The proposed bicycle licensing ordinance and the proposed ordinance for banning shooting of fireworks in the city again will be aired at an informal meeting of the city council at 7:30 Thursday night at the council rooms in the city hall.

Menasha city officials and the public are invited to attend the meeting which was called by Alderman Walter Buschey, chairman of the committee on printing and ordinance.

Opinions of the people and officials of both cities will be sought by the Neenah council on both proposed ordinance. The bicycle licensing ordinance was proposed nearly a year ago by former Alderman George MacDonald, but it was tabled at that time. It recently was revived by Alderman Robert Martens, but the council has hesitated in adopting the ordinance until Menasha adopts a similar ordinance. A Neenah ordinance would be ineffective unless Menasha had a similar law, aldermen have said.

The proposed fireworks ordinance recently was suggested by Alderman Carl Loehning who proposed that the sale and shooting of fireworks in Neenah be prohibited at all times except displays by the city.

Even Grand Old Art Of Sawing Bows to These Modern Ways

An electric hand saw that simplifies and speeds carpentry work has been purchased by Theodore Utschig, contractor, and has proved its mettle by three weeks of hard toil.

The 10-inch saw is finished as attractively as electrical appliances found in modern homes. It can be tipped to any angle to perform the various sawing duties that have always been done by hand.

Timbers may be cut cross-wise or length-wise and the saw will handle a number of timbers at once. With the saw securely fastened on a mounting for heavy cutting, accuracy is assured. The saw and motor may be detached from the mounting, however. A carpenter working on a new home can move about using the saw, equipped with a long cord, just as a housewife runs a vacuum cleaner over her rugs.

those undated styles in sweaters, skirts, and this fall the extra jacket — is the thesis of every shipment arriving these days. These campus fashions have a rightness that will see them through several seasons at school.
There is a very "new" look about a vari-colored striped wool jacket and a contrasting colored sweater topped by the inevitable strand of pearls. Or your choice may be a tweed skirt in a new shade "teal" — the duck blue, worn with a wine sweater.

The Characters

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.

Rene Geiss, singularly unpleasant but famous cartoonist.

Yesterday: Geiss seems interested in our encounter with the blonde girl, Eve Monet, on the Carlton Terrace, and asks if we are going to see her tonight at Palm Beach, a night club.

Chapter Three

Death Of A Frightened Girl

The trail had literally run out in sand drift when we pulled up before a high iron gateway through which showed a small graveled court bordered with oleanders and backed by a low pink house smothered in wisteria. The gates were promptly opened to us by Penelope, a small [illegible] elderly woman in black, who remarked [illegible] "[illegible] is late."

[illegible] a small [illegible] of cardboard to Hugo. "The gentleman waited for half an hour, but could stay no longer."

"O'D [illegible]!" said he. "Now, by all that's holy, what's he doing in these parts? Last time I saw him was six months ago in New York. I asked [illegible] if he was ever on this side, and he said there wasn't a chance of it."

"What's his job?" I asked, and Hugo hesitated.

"Officially he sells [illegible] for a living, but actually he's a private detective, though I only found it out by chance. He's a dashed good fellow and I wish I hadn't missed him. I wonder where he's staying?"

"One has written on the other side," suggested Penelope, her small beady eyes betraying a flicker of excitement, and he turned the card over, whistling as he scanned the penciled words on its reverse. "Here's mystery!" said he. "Now, what d'you make of this? 'Meet me tonight, Palm Beach, without fail. Desperately urgent. Counting on you. O'D.'"

"You'll go, I suppose?" I asked.

Hugo nodded. "We'll all go."

Ada sniffed. "You can count me out," said she. "And if you take my advice, you'll stay at home, too, and have a quiet game of bridge. If the man's a detective [illegible] only turn to pistols and murders and hidden ciphers. You ought to know that, Hugo."

She looked from one to the other of us but finding no response in our expression, shrugged resignedly and stumped into the house.

That night, as we packed ourselves into the black [illegible], Hugo cool and [illegible] in his [illegible] I [illegible] what a handsome devil he was with his dark [illegible] face more striking than ever above the white of his coat. But he was [illegible]

Feller Weakens In Eighth Frame, Indians Lose, 4-2

Kreevich's Triple With Bases Loaded Gives Chi Sox Victory

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox caught up with Bob Feller in the eighth inning Monday, scored three runs on Mike Kreevich's triple with the bases loaded, and handed the Indians a 4-2 trimming in the fifth and deciding game of the series.

Going into the eighth the Indians were leading, 2-1, and Feller had fanned eight, walked but two and held the Sox to six hits.

Joe Kuhel led off with a single to center, stole second and went to third on Gerald Walker's infield hit. Feller then walked Luke Appling to fill the bases, and Kreevich cleared them a moment later with a terrific clout to deep center field. The Sox had scored their first run in the sixth on Walker's single and a double by Rip Radcliffe.

Hemsley Takes Charge

Rollie Hemsley, Feller's battery mate, took charge of the Indian scoring. He clipped Johnny Whitehead, who went the route for the Sox and gave up nine hits, for a pair of doubles, driving home Lyn Lary with his first two-bagger, in the third, and scoring himself on Jeff Heath's fly and Hal Trosky's single after doubling down the third base line in the sixth.

Feller, like Whitehead, allowed nine hits, five of them for extra bases. Walker, in addition to his two singles, got a double and Kreevich smacked a single and double besides his game-winning three-bagger, Marvin Owen also hit a triple.

It was Feller's eighth defeat, against 12 victories, and his second straight loss. The victory brought Whitehead's record up to the .500 mark—seven and seven.

Moody Withdraws From Forest Hills

Failure to Recover From "Severe Attack of Neuritis" Is Cause

New York—(AP)—Because of the effects of "a severe attack of neuritis," which has kept her out of competition since returning from her Wimbledon triumph, Helen Wills Moody today notified the United States Lawn Tennis association she would not play in the forthcoming national women's singles championships at Forest Hills.

Mrs. Moody disclosed her decision in a letter to Edward B. Moss, executive secretary of the U.S.L.T.A. She explained she had failed to respond to treatment, since coming back to this country, and did not feel that she would be able, without sufficient practice, "to play in such competition as offered by Forest Hills."

The long-time queen of the tennis courts, who undertook a comeback campaign this year with the idea of seeking to regain the American singles crown as well as honors at Wimbledon, accompanied her notice of withdrawal with a refund of her entire expenses, amounting to $1,309.45, for her trip to England with the Wightman cup team.

She expressed hope the U.S.L.T.A. would accept the refund, in view of her inability to fulfill her promise to compete in the national tournament.

While making no definite commitment as to her plans otherwise, the tone of Mrs. Moody's letter was interpreted by some observers as indicating a farewell to amateur tennis.

Budge, Mako Face Tough Opponents

Davis Cup Team Draws Sabin and Cooke on Today's Tourney Card

Brookline, Mass.—(AP)—If there are tennis advantages derived from stiff competition, they probably will be gained by Don Budge and Gene Mako, rather than Australia's Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich, during the current national doubles play at Longwood.

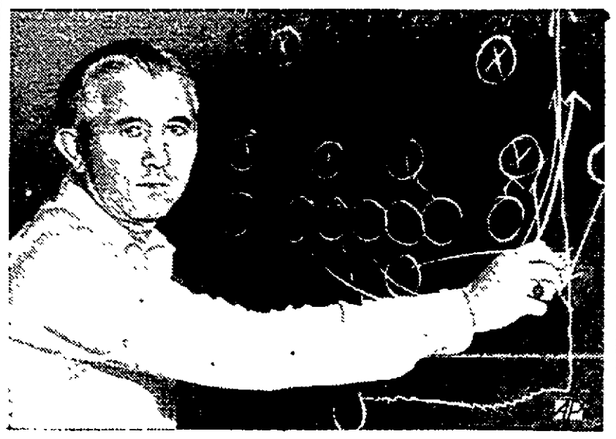

The stars from down under appeared to have an easy passage into the title round, but for Budge and Mako it was almost certain to be rocky road. For their second round opponents today, the U. S. Davis cuppers drew Wayne Sabin of Los Angeles and Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., whom they had a difficult task subduing at Newport last week, 15-13, 6-4 7-5.

Quist and Bromwich, unbeaten since they teamed for Davis cup service 10 months ago, had slight reason to worry about today's opponents, Hal Surface of Kansas City, and Don McNeill of Oklahoma City.

Second round play in the women's division today saw the opening competition of the defending titlists, Alice Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, and the top-seeded foreign entry, Nancy Coyne of Australia.

Two Hundred Gridders Will Report to Layden

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Those must be crocodile tears Elmer Layden is shedding—the kind Sam Breadon wept when he sold Dizzy Dean to the Cubs. . . Elmer has 100 footballers reporting Sept. 10. . . . Five days later another hundred odd will show up. . . Still he moans so loud you can hear him from here. . . (They must grow 'em on trees out there, at that). . . Joe DiMaggio doesn't own a slice of Jim Braddock's restaurant, as some of the chroniclers chronicled—the reason he spends so much time there is because the grub is on the cuff. . . . Seabiscuit and Ligaroti may do an encore in Seattle.

Joe Savoldi, once a great fullback at Notre Dame and later one of those dime-a-dozen wrestling champs, has bought a farm near Niles, Mich. . . The gambling ban has taken most of the pep out of the Saratoga meeting. . . New York News says Buddy Hassett is all set to transfer to the Polo Grounds this winter if the Dodgers will take Hal Schumacher and Hank Leiber in return. . . Tony Galento is around again, cocky as ever.

A Harlem hot spot has a ringside table reservation for Joe Louis for as long as he lives and it doesn't cost Joe a dime. . . Look for the training table, in modified form, to reappear in Big Ten football camps this fall. . . Bing Crosby's Del Mar race track is losing dough although betting is 50 per cent ahead of last year.

What is the real dope on Burgess Whitehead, anyway? . . . The boy still is on the Giant ailing list, but he managed to clout two homers for his Lewiston (N. C.) team the other day. . . . Glenn Cunningham, the well-known amateur miler, seems to be doing all right if it is true that he paid an income tax on $34,000 last year. . . . Ed Cochrane, sports editor of the Chicago Evening American and one of the best of the mid-west football officials, has been promoted to supervisor of sports in all the papers of the Hearst chain.

Charley Gehringer, known as the silent man of the American league, once won a high school oratorical contest. . . Red Rolfe, Yanks third sacker, takes to the air tomorrow night to size up the American league pennant race. . . He can give 'em the dope in two words: "We're in". . . Yanks plan to take some fancy stitches in their drive to sew up the flag this week. . . five double headers in five days. . . Coach Arthur Fletcher said: "We may have a little trouble, but I'll bet the Sox and Indians run out of pitchers before we do." . . . As for yours truly, we're packing up and moving into the Yankee stadium.

Other teams closed in the following order: Art's Decorators, Athletic Club, Coppens Shoes, Electricians, Research, Billics' Bumpers, Verhagen Hardwares, Super Calendars and School Mams.

Milwaukee Registers 8-4 Victory Over Columbus In Series Opener

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Three home runs in the first four innings helped Milwaukee to an 8 to 4 victory over Columbus in the series opener last night.

Lin Storti hit one for the circuit with two on in the first, Ted Gullic with none on in the third, and Joe Just with one on the fourth.

Outside of Jimmy Bucher's two-run homer in the fourth, Jose Gonzales had little trouble with the Red Birds until they rallied for two more in the ninth on singles by Buddy Hasson, Art Garibaldi, Fred Ankenman and Joe Schultz, plus Gullic's error.

5-Inning Game

A dust and rain storm joined forces with Indianapolis last night in the most recent attempt, blotting out the game at the end of five innings. By that time, however, St. Paul had run up an 8 to 3 lead and the game had gone the required number of innings to make it a legal victory.

The win, the 15th pitching triumph of the season for Vic Frasier, enabled St. Paul to maintain its five game advantage over Kansas City, which came from behind to defeat Toledo, 7 to 4.

Minneapolis won over Louisville, 9 to 3, in another game called at the end of the fifth because of rain.

Bowling League Opens Sept. 9

Merchants Circuit Again Will Have 16 Teams And Roll at Arcade

The Merchants Bowling league will show with 16 teams again this season and roll Friday nights on the Arcade alleys, it was decided at a meeting of officers and team captains last night at 203 N. Appleton street. Tony Natrop, president of the circuit, presided. The league will open on Sept. 9.

The league discussed pins, prize funds and decided on 190 as scratch. There will be no bowling the week of Dec. 23 or during Holy Week.

There are several open berths in the circuit and applications should be made to Natrop at Hooks and Tony barber shop. The entry fee is $5.

Among those who attended last night's meeting were Dick Wenzlaff, Vic Hartzheim, Jim Richmond, Don Pegal, John Foster, Bob Deuster, Wilbur Steenis, George Schuessler, Tony Natrop, Melvin Schneider, Casey Stingie, Jerry Schomisch and Don Huhn.

M'Millin Finds Stars All Played Safety

Chicago —(AP)— Indiana's Bo McMillin, head coach of the college all star football team which will meet the Washington Redskins Aug. 31, faced another problem today—that of finding a formidable combination to back up the line on defense.

Of the 32 backfield men listed on the squad, 20 played the safety position during their collegiate careers.

At the Washington camp in Ballston, W. Va., meanwhile, the Redskins were recovering from a scare brought on by an injury to their star passer, Sammy Baugh. Baugh reported yesterday with a swollen ankle. X-ray pictures disclosed a sprain but no broken bones.

Valley Irons Card Out of Town Games

Valley Iron softballers are scheduled in two out of town games during the week. Tonight the Irons will go to the Wisconsin Veterans Home near Waupaca and clash with the Vets under lights. Branchford and Horn will form the Appleton battery while Thiel, Oshkosh, is slated to hurl for the Vets.

Thursday night the Irons will be at Manitowoc. They recently won first honors in a Manitowoc invitational softball tournament.

Paul Dean Can't Strike Out Phantom of Bad Luck

DALLAS—(AP)— Tragically near the bottom of the Texas league pitching averages is the line:

"Paul Dean, Dallas, won 7 lost 15."

It doesn't tell the real story, however. It doesn't tell about one of the longest courtships a ball player ever had with hard luck. It doesn't tell how the youngster who used to wipe a grimy pitching hand across a St. Louis Cardinal emblem has seen his comeback stymied by eight one-run defeats.

Only Sunday the not-so-daffy one hurled a typical "Paul Dean game" Against Beaumont, the ball-busting league leaders, he twirled a masterpiece—a three-hitter, with singles spaced in the first, fifth and eighth innings. No bases on balls, either.

But he lost—1 to 0. An outfielder dropped a fly and let in the run.

Dean doesn't get many runs to work on from his seventh place Dallas teammates. Once he leaned on murderous "Gashouse Gang" bats for his runs and used a curve that broke from his elbow to handle National league foes. But the steers don't pound across runs when he hurls.

Paul's control is good, his fast ball is returning and he takes his lickings with a grin. Never does he complain about the lame arm that shunted him back to the bushes.

Slammin's Sam Adds $1,000 More to Sock

Toronto — (AP) — Slammin' Sam Snead is the Canadian open golf champion but it took 27 holes of spectacular playoff golf before Harry Cooper relinquished his grip on the dominion title.

After finishing the 72 holes of the regular tourney with 277's, the two played off for the title yesterday. At the end of 18 holes they were tied with 67's and went into another nine in which Snead scored a two-under par 34 to Cooper's 39. For the 27 holes, Snead carded 101, seven under par to 105 for Cooper on the Mississauga Country club course.

The victory brought the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., pro $1,000 and kept him well ahead as the top money winner of the season. Cooper got $600 for runner-up position.

Tuesday — Taxis versus Menasha Merchants.

Wednesday—Taxis versus Valley Iron.

FOUR runs in the first inning three of them coming on Cliff Burton's home run, gave the Mellow Brews a 4 to 0 win over the Forsters Taverns last evening at Pierce park and tossed the American City league race into an open battle. Previously the Taverns had been invincible and almost every one was conceding them the round title and league championship.

Cramer

The game was the last on the round schedule for the Forsters and gives the Valley Iron Works, in second place, a chance to tie. The Irons have won five and lost one and have a postponed game with the Town Taxis to play Wednesday night. The league also has called a meeting of managers for 7:30 Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A. to name an all-star team.

The Mellow Brews dominated play last night just about as much as the score indicates. Cramer tossed for the winners and allowed two hits, fanned fourteen batters and walked one. George Swamp worked for the losers and gave up nine hits, fanned six and walked none. Cliff Burton hit a homer and double, DeLeest a triple and Cramer a double for the Brews. Choudoir got a double for the Foresters.

The first inning was almost the story of the ball game. DeLeest opened with a pop fly back of first that rolled for three bases. Buesing then bunted but Swamp's throw home was too late. Buesing advanced to second on a wide throw of Rippl's grounder and Cliff Burton came up and cleaned the sacks with a homer.

Forsters threatened only once, in the fourth. Hiebel led off with a hard hit over third, and advanced to second when Ryan erred on Swamp's grounder. The runners then staged a double steal but Cramer struck out the next two batters.

Cramer fanned every member of the Forster squad at least once excepting Swamp.

Hubbell Resting After Operation

Hubbell

Hubbell had a chip of bone removed from his elbow yesterday, and hospital authorities said he rested well last night, although somewhat uncomfortable from effect of a general anesthetic.

A small incision was made at the left elbow and several splinters of bone removed from near the joint.

The arm will be kept in a splint for about two weeks. Dr. J. Spencer Speed, Memphis orthopedist who performed the operation, said that when Hubbell will be able to pitch again "must be determined later."

Hubbell's arm ailment was made known Thursday after he retired from the mound in the fifth inning in a game with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Later the Giant hurler said the injury developed during the 1936 campaign.

Walter Johnson Pitches Once More—Into Politics

Germantown, Md. —(AP)— Walter Johnson, king of speedball pitchers until he retired from baseball to become a farmer, still has a fast one.

Tobin Allows 5 Hits and Pirates Humble Cubs, 4-2

Giants Among Spectators; Derringer Wins No. 17 for Reds

CHICAGO—(AP)—Big Jim Tobin hurled five-hit ball and his Pirate mates bunched four of their hits for three runs in the seventh inning Monday to give Pittsburgh a 4-2 victory over the Cubs in the final game of their series.

A crowd of 9,000, which brought attendance for the three-day set to better than 70,000, saw the Pirates tack another half-game to their National league lead. They now are five and a half games in front of the New York Giants, most of whom were spectators at yesterday's game.

Pittsburgh got the jump on the Cubs by scoring a run in the first on bases on balls to Lee Handley and Lloyd Waner and Johnny Rizzo's single to left. The Cubs tied it up in the fifth on a two-bagger by Phil Cavarretta, an infield out and Billy Jurges' long fly, but the Bucs put the game on ice in the seventh, and drove Clay Bryant to the showers in the process.

Lloyd Waner opened the frame with a single to center, but was forced by brother Paul. Rizzo then smacked another single and the bases were filled when Arky Vaughan drew a walk. Gus Suhr's smash off Carl Reynolds' glove scored Waner and left the bases filled, and two more runs came in on Pep Young's safety to left. That was enough for Bryant, who had issued seven passes and was constantly behind the batter.

Tobin, who walked only two men, gave up the second Cub run in the ninth, when Reynolds clouted his third homer of the year into the left field bleachers.

REDS GET 18 HITS

St. Louis — (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds broke loose with an 18-hit attack yesterday against four St. Louis Cardinal pitchers to give Paul Derringer his seventeenth victory of the season, 11 to 4.

The Reds exploded for five runs in the fourth, the inning after Manager Bill McKechnie was banished by Umpire George Barr for protesting Derringer's being called out at the plate, and garnered six more in the next three frames.

Frank McCormick, Reds' sensational first sacker, led the attack with five hits in six times up.

Johnny Mize, big Cardinal first baseman, slammed out his nineteenth homer of the season in the second inning with Joe Medwick on base.

2 Unknowns Lead Public Tourney

Unemployed Youth and Metal Polisher Shoot Pace-Setting 68's

Cleveland—(AP)—Golf may be just a game to most players — but its far more than that to Eddie Furgol and Pete Doll.

As the seventeenth National Public Links championship swung into its second day at Highland Park municipal course, Furgol and Doll were riding along on pace setting 68's and high hopes of some day making the sport their life's work.

Before their brilliant two-under-par performances yesterday in the first round of qualifying play in the working man's annual classic, Furgol and Doll were just two more "unknowns" in a star-studded field. Both had the shots under pressure, however, and stole the show to virtually clinch two of the 64 qualifying berths which will be determined by nightfall.

Match play will begin tomorrow and continue through Saturday's 36 hole final.

Out of Work

Furgol, blond 20-year old unemployed youth from Utica, N. Y., has made many sacrifices to develop a game he hopes will some day land him a professional's position.

His trade is polishing metal, but he hasn't worked for three months —and golf balls and course fees have meant giving up movies and new clothes. When he was 13, he saved pennies for a year to pay $12 for his set of clubs

Doll, 23 years old, is employed by a Louisville, Ky., plumbing goods manufacturing company but since January has worked only two days a week. He also fervently hopes to land a professional's job. A caddy for 10 years, he practices daily and his second nine yesterday was a standout in consistency — nine consecutive fours.

A Champion Soprano Fan Watches Cardinals Play

MRS. Mary Ott, who has had a seat in Box 16, Sportsmans Park grandstand, St. Louis, for 18 years, has a strong claim to the honor of being baseball's No. 1 Soprano Fan. Mrs. Ott's strenuous cheering efforts on behalf of the Cards are an institution. At the right, you may watch her as she combines voice and gesture in an effort to bring a victory. Note her thoughtfulness in the first picture, her joy at the Cards' good fortune in Nos. 2 and 3. In No. 4 Mrs. Ott indulges in a St. Louis Bronx cheer. Because of the Cardinals' record this season, she has probably had more occasion for this expression than for any other in her repertoire.

Housewife From Missouri, Ohio Farm Boy Hold Spotlight

Vandalia, Ohio —(AP)— Scatter-gun history was in the making today as the nation's premier enthusiasts faced the traps in the 39th annual Grand American trapshoot with two clay-target blasters in position to set new records.

Mrs. Lela Hall, comely housewife from Strasburg, Mo., national clay target champ of North America the past three years, and Joe Hiestand, the farm boy from Hillsboro, Ohio, were the duo in the spotlight on the second day's program.

Mrs. Hall, 120 pounds of dynamite, is the only person ever to win the same title three times in a row at the "roaring grand." If she wins the crown today in the 200-target 16-yard event, she'll add another step to the ladder that posterity must climb to erase her record.

Hiestand, riding along on an unbroken string of 566 targets, needs but the first 19 today to set a new world record for amateur shooters. Walter Beaver, the hot-shot from Conshocken, Pa., who won the 1933 Grand American handicap from the 25-yard line, holds the record of 585, set two years ago.

The champion of champions title is on the block today, a carryover from yesterday when a sensational six-man shootoff was halted by darkness. Six state champions broke 100 in a row in the regular event, and only two of them, Beaver and Mark Hootman, Hicksville, Ohio, veteran, survived the 100-target extra frame. Both broke 99 of the extra century before darkness fell over the traps.

Eliminated in the shootoffs were D. F. Beck of Havre de Grace, Md., Phil Miller of French Lick, Ind., Ned Lilly of Staunton, Mich., and Ed Luyben of Nashville, Tenn.

Newcomer Is Star As Tourney Opens

Barbara Ransom, California Girl, Shoots 76 in Women's Western

Chicago —(AP)— For the moment at least, Miss Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., defending champion, and Miss Patty Berg, Minneapolis, ranking challenger, were sharing the spotlight with a comparative outsider at 32 survivors of the qualifying test swung into the first round flight of the Women's Western Golf Championship tournament at Olympic Field Country club today.

The newcomer is Barbara Ransom, a sturdy bespectacled 24-year-old daughter of the Stockton, California, country club's professional. She upset one of the best fields in tournament history yesterday in registering a pair of 38's for a 76 to become the qualifying medalist. Her card was three strokes under women's par and only one stroke over the all time medal mark set at St. Paul a year ago by Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City.

The freckled-face, redheaded Miss Berg, conqueror of Miss Miley in the western derby, with a record 72 hole score of 308 10 days ago, qualified with a 79, even par and one stroke better than Miss Miley, Mrs. Hill and Eva Shorb, Massillon, O., who had 80's.

The low 32 scorers among the 124 starters qualified for match play in the championship flight, with sixteen first round matches today and eight tomorrow. The finalists meet Saturday in the 36 hole title round.

Mule Taming Is Factor In Dodgers' New Spirit

BY GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK —(AP)— Burleigh Grimes, unshaven boss of the Brooklyns, traces the increasing success of his team more or less directly to the fact that his father used to be noted as a muleteamer down in Missouri.

Grimes

His father, Burleigh revealed the other day, could take a long-eared, mean mule that had kicked the wadding out of three previous owners and within 18 months have the brute pulling the family carriage. He just had the knack.

"What he did was curry 'em and curry 'em," the Dodger pilot reflected as he admired his circular first-base coach, George H. Ruth, who was whacking balls into the stand in batting practice. "As I remember, it always took about 18 months. That's roughly the length of time I've had this club.

"A mule likes currying and so do ball players. Now, these boys of mine are getting a little better all the time. They're getting a winning spirit, and they're going to be hard to beat by the time the season ends."

They're Looking Better

The fact is that the Brooklyns are looking better. They've just finished their first winning home stand of the year. They grabbed eight out of nine at Ebbets field. They trimmed their arch-foemen, the Giants, two out of three at the Polo Grounds. They are sixth in the National league, and think they will wind up no lower than fourth.

It's more apparent every day that Babe Ruth has found a happy home with the Flatbushers. The big fellow is enjoying himself, and he says he is going to stay with the Dodgers as long as they want him. He hasn't lifted a golf club since the day Larry MacPhail signed him to a coaching contract.

He's helped the Brooklyn morale. The younger players all like the Babe, and he's practically adopted Koy. Calls him "my boy." The kid pitchers, too, sit and fan with him in the dugout.

"Don't throw too many curves," he was telling one of them. "All you've gotta do is let the batters know you got it. When I was pitchin' I never threw more than four hooks a game—and none of 'em was a strike."

TAKING FRESH WATER FISH—THE MUSKELLUNGE

By Buell Patterson

IN spite of its size, the muskellunge, oddly enough, is not a deep water fish. It stays most of the time in water ranging from five feet in depth to less than fifteen feet. Even in the winter it will be found in water less than thirty feet deep. The place to seek the muskie in the summer is along the outer edges of the weed beds, pads, rushes, etc. A study of muskellunge fishing conducted within the borders of the United States is interesting in that over 90 per cent of the fishing for this species has been by the method of trolling. Once in a while a fisherman, instead of trolling with his spoon, breaks the moss-grown ritual and goes in for casting his spoon or lure up to the pads, rushes, etc., and actually takes fish.

Time and again it has been proven that where most of the fishing has been done by trolling, (and without success) a shift to casting the spoon or plug has proved a genuine surprise. This may be all the way from ten feet to twenty feet away from the pads and rushes where the fish may be lying. The lure, thus, rarely comes within reach of the fish; indeed he may never get a glimpse of the lure, therefore, how can he be expected to take it? But where the boat is rowed well away from the weeds, and casts are accurately made at closely spaced intervals along the length of the shore so that all likely water is covered, there you are likely to take a fish unawares, and chances of a catch are multiplied many fold.

Must Surprise Him

Any fisherman who has long been in the game knows it to be a rock-bottom fact that almost every cagey fish that swims water that is ultimately hooked is taken unawares; that is, when a lure without warning drops in close proximity of his honorable face, it will be seized on the surprise of the moment. In consideration of this fact, much-fished waters are best fished by casting than by trolling.

The muskellunge, unlike the great northern pike and the eastern pickerel, is in the habit of keeping himself in one restricted bay, nook or cove along the shore of a lake. Thus, if you raise a fish of this species in such a place and fail to take him, it is almost certain that you can return to that place anytime thereafter and fish for him in the same spot, for he will not be far away.

Types of Baits to Use

For muskellunge it will be found that the regulation type of fluted spoons in the No. 9 and No. 12 sizes, with feathered vanes, will prove of exceptional value. Certain oval-shaped spoons of the heavy duty muskie type are also noteworthy recommendations. Such spoons have a plain blade and bucktail masking the ganghook, either red, yellow or natural grey in color. Both types of spoons should be carried in the tackle box. Aside from spoon lures, plug lures in various types are useful. Such plugs are five to six inches in length, of solid construction or in the pointed type. The rainbow colored plug and the plug with pikie coloration are by far the most successful. Being a fish which operates in and around the weed beds and inner waters, the muskie takes its food often on the top of the water, therefore those lures that are of the top-water variety, and which disturb or boil the water are of exceptional value. Revolving head plugs with spinners fore and aft also are effective. The wounded minnow type and several others will take muskellunge when others are likely to prove inadequate to demands.

Baseball's First 99 Years

By GARDNER SOULE

IN 1840 a rule was introduced that the first-baseman had to hold the ball to retire the runner. In 1876 the hitter or "striker" was permitted to call for a high or low ball. In 1883 if a manager didn't like an umpire, he could have the umpire removed.

Four are Held in Assault on Man

Men Accused of Kidnaping, Beating Former Coast Guard Officer

Olympia, Wash. —(AP)— Prosecutor Smith Troy announced today officers had rounded up all four night-raiders accused of the revenge-abduction and attempted mutilation of Irving Baker, former coast guard officer.

The fourth man taken into custody, Troy said, was Robert Smith, 32, arrested this morning at his farm home at Brady, 20 miles west of Olympia.

Smith admitted he participated in the kidnaping and assault, under "altogether different circumstances" than the others involved, the prosecutor reported, and promised a complete statement later.

Previously jailed on kidnaping and assault charges were Dr. K. W. Berry, 54-year-old Olympia physician; James Reddick, 27, taxi driver, and William K. McAloon, former night marshall at Montesano, Wash.

Taken from his home by two armed men posing as officers, Baker was driven to a lonely spot Friday night and brutally beaten. An unsuccessful attempt was made to emasculate him.

Establish Office to Collect Process Tax

Washington— (AP)— The treasury announced yesterday it had completed establishment of 13 regional offices to speed up the collection of processing taxes collected by manufacturers but not paid to the treasury after the supreme court invalidated the agricultural adjustment act three years ago.

Approximately $1,220,000,000 is involved in the extensive litigation over the taxes throughout the country. To avoid the tax, processors must prove they did not add the amount of processing taxes to the price of their products prior to the court decision.

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota will have regional offices in St. Paul with C. W. Rink as supervisor.

'Extreme Kindness' Toward Wife Leads To Marital Discord

Chicago —(AP)— A husband's "extreme kindness" toward his wife was cited today by a prominent alienist as one cause of the marital discord that led to the slaying of his love rival.

Rudolph Sikora, 31, the husband, was held by police after the death of Edward Solomon, 35, shot on a North Side street corner yesterday.

At police headquarters Sikora said his wife, Margaret, 22, was "the perfect girl, the best wife a man could have." In turn Mrs. Sikora called him "a perfect husband" and "a model man" but one unable to make her happy.

To Dr. Harry R. Hoffman of the Cook county behavior clinic she offered her explanation for the paradox.

"Because he was a person so easy to get along with," she explained, "I felt he was more like a brother than a husband. . . . I rebelled against his extreme kindness."

Madison —(AP)— Attorney General Orland S. Loomis advised District Attorney Clyde J. Strang, of Burnette county today that a town board can legally claim reimbursement for the care of cattle that are neglected by the owner. He also advised Strang that anyone who receives old age pension cannot gain a legal settlement for relief purposes.

Loomis informed District Attorney Burton E. Hoffman, of Marquette county, that counties are liable for the care of all poor persons who have no legal settlement, including infants whose parents are dead.

Urges Pay-as-You-Go Basis for Payment Of Old Age Pensions

Sparta, Wis. —(AP)— James G. Peterson of Medford, Republican candidate for governor, last night criticized a section of the national old age security law providing for "the creation of a huge fund, the income from which will be used to pay old age pensions."

Peterson said he fully approved payment of old age pensions, but that payment should be made on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"The present law, put through by the Democratic national administration," he said, "provides that taxes levied on employes and employers shall go into a fund which shall be invested, and the income used for paying pensions.

"The continual collection of these taxes over the years will eventually cause the fund to attain gigantic proportions. This fund will be a constant temptation to politicians in office. . . . Taxes for pension purposes in any one year ought to be sufficient to raise the estimated amount of pensions to be paid that year, plus a small amount to allow for undere timates.

"If enough of our citizens vote Republican this year this system can be advanced."

New York —(AP)— Heavy buying in automotive issues switched the stock market back on the recovery speedway today and leaders swung upward fractions to more than three points, many penetrating new high territory for the year and longer.

Although profit-taking was in evidence here and there on the last lap, closing quotations were not far from the peaks of the day. Transfers were around 1,000,000 shares.

Some reluctance to climb aboard was shown in the forenoon as developments in Europe, including a threat of a general strike in France resulting from Premier Daladier's attempt to abolish the 40-hour week in industry, dimmed speculative ardor.

Foreign securities markets were irregular. Commodities generally lacked ability to ride with stocks on the recovery push, although most were slightly improved. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to up ⅜ of a cent a bushel and corn ⅛ off to ⅜ higher. Cotton, in late transactions, was up about 30 cents a bale. Bonds pointed upward.

Celanese came to life on a decision in the company's favor in a patent infringement suit handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals.

Many wide swings were shown in the curb market.

Bus Company Incomes Lower Than Last Year

Madison —(AP)— The income of Wisconsin city and interurban bus companies from passenger fares in the first six months of 1938 was about $1,360,000, the public service commission announced today.

A total of 13,305,000 persons rode nearly 10,000,000 miles in city buses and paid about $880,000 for the service. About 1,477,000 interurban passengers traveled nearly 5,000,000 miles and paid $480,000.

The commission said both city and interurban passengers totals showed a slight decrease from 1937.

Bordens Defeat Knights to Take Second Half Title

Winners Will Meet Gambles in Series for City Championship

New London — Behind the brilliant pitching of Leonard Hoffman, the Borden softballers white-washed the Knights of Columbus, 10 to 0, in a city industrial league playoff game under the lights last night for the second half championship. The Milkmen will tangle with Gambles, first half winners, in a 3-game championship series which is expected to start Friday night.

Hoffman pitched a no-hit, no-run game until the sixth when Dave Freiburger spoiled it with a bingo over the shortstop's head but it was the only one. The Borden speedballer set some sort of a league record when he struck out 15 of the 22 batters who faced him. He walked one, in the fifth.

The K. C.'s played brilliant ball in the field but pitcher Charlie Nader was way off form in the beginning and the Bordens took their overwhelming lead in just three innings. They were goose-egged in both hits and runs after that. Charlie walked eight batters in those first three innings and gave two hits in each frame. The heavy sluggers were Ben Boese with a triple and Gerhardt Felsner with a double.

Both sides were guilty of just two errors each. Bordens securing after the two K. C. men made the bases.

New London — The musical comedy revue, "Coast to Coast," under preparation by the Methodist church for Aug. 30 and 31, was definitely called off yesterday by the illness of the director, Miss Loretta Lane, representing a Kansas City production company. Miss Lane became ill last week while working on the selection of the cast and was taken from Community hospital here to her home at Macon, Mo., today by members of her family.

Music Practice Rooms at School Nearly Complete

New London — Completion of the music rehearsal rooms under the auditorium of the Washington High school this week will mark the greatest structural improvement in the city's school buildings this year. The additional facilities will be ready for students when school opens next week Tuesday.

The new rooms consist of a main rehearsal room 18 x 49 feet and four individual practicing rooms 10 by 11 feet. At one end is an office measuring 7 by 18 feet for Director M. S. Zahrt. Two corridors lead to exits outdoors and into the basement floor of the school proper. All ceilings are covered with a sound-absorbing material.

The project was estimated to cost about $1,000. The addition will leave the auditorium stage now entirely free for dramatics work, removing the conflict between groups which existed the last several years.

New Desk Room

Other structural work finished is the conversion of a guest shower room at the west of the gymnasium into a desk room for the physical education director and his assistant. The change will allow instructors to direct activities in the gymnasium while at work at their desk in the room. Play equipment also will be stored handily in the room. A large window opening has been cut in the wall between the room and the gym.

Posts have been sunk and stretching of a heavy wire fence along the south boundary of the high school playground will be started this week. The fence will separate the grounds from private property.

Preparation at Lincoln and McKinley public schools and the Emanuel Lutheran and Most Precious Blood parochial schools consists largely of redecorated rooms and refinished floors and desks. No major improvements were undertaken at any of the buildings excepting that at the high shcool.

All schools, public and parochial, will open Sept. 6.

Former St. Paul Pitcher to Take Mound Wednesday

Decker Will Pitch for New London Against Manitowoc Nine

New London — The Miller High Lifes may be at the bottom of the Northern State league in standings but they can still provide a feature attraction for the fans.

A surprise pitching sensation is promised for Wednesday night to help the dismantled High Life squad push over the invading Manitowoc club in a league game. With Munsch, Shortell and Hauk absent only a skeleton lineup remains.

Clif Decker, a pitching personality with St. Paul in the American Association last year, will pay New London a visit Wednesday to work on the mound, according to Manager Del Stacy.

Decker is home at Red Granite after completing a series of 14 exhibition games this summer against such teams as the House of David and others and he has won 10 of the 14 encounters. With St. Paul last year he defeated the Milwaukee Brewers but after hurting his arm was sent to Texas for recovery and has been working his way back this year.

Clifford is a brother of Donald Decker of this city who tests milk for the Pure Milk association at the Borden plant and Donald promises a real show. The game begins at 8:30 Wednesday night under the lights.

THE CLOUDED MOON

undoubtedly putting on weight. When I told him so, he snorted.

"It's muscle, my young friend, and anyway, a great hulking brute like yourself has no call to cast nasturtiums. Seriously, Archie, why go back to Antibes? It's a damn silly idea of yours to push off again so quickly. Tell this fellow Lubbock to take his ketch on to San Remo by himself."

"I'd like to," I said regrettully, "but I promised Mark to put in a fortnight with him. I don't see how I can well get out of it."

He snorted again. "Think it over," he said, "and let me know in the morning," and as we drove on I knew that, as far as personal inclinations went, I was all for staying, though whether it was the queer, exotic charm of the Chalet d'Amour, the pleasure of Hugo's company, or the thought of seeing a bit more of the girl in red and white I couldn't tell; and, as the car swept round the vast, light-spangled crescent of the Croisette, out to the distant point where a thicker cluster of spangles showed that Palm Beach lay, I found myself strangely unwilling to try and find out.

Mannequin Show

The great revolving doors spun round to receive us. The gay and lovely room was crowded with beautiful women and distinguished-looking men. It was, I decided, going to be a good evening, and even as Hugo picked up the wine list a gong sounded sharply, the lights lowered, and the silver curtains on the stage billowed in a sudden wind.

"Hell's bells!" said Hugo. "D'you know what we've let ourselves in for? It's no cabaret. It's a mannequin show." And he read out from the program: " 'Mme Lili Stefan will present her collection of early autumn models.' "

"Too bad," I agreed sympathetically, though my own reaction was merely a sharpened interest, for this, I thought, was the explanation of our little blonde. A mannequin—probably, as Hugo had thought, of good family and earning her living in the only way open to a girl with looks and no money.

As the thought come to me, a couple of white-jacketed waiters dragged a sort of runway out from the platform half-way across the dance-floor, a huge amber spotlight flashed from the back of the room, and the silver curtains drifted apart. A diminutive page-boy appeared, sharply silhouetted, against the black velvet curtains, holding a card with the number one and the name "Autumn Leaf," and a tall, dark girl undulated forward, dressed in a fur-trimmed garment of chestnut velvet.

At the same time I saw something else. Across the dance floor, behind the tables on the other side, a man was standing. The light was too dim to distinguish his face, but I saw vaguely that he was short, sandy-haired, and wore a white mess-jacket. As I looked, he raised his hand sharply, trying, I thought, to attract the attention of someone on our side of the room. I was puzzled, for I didn't know him from Adam, and then it struck me that he might be some acquaintance of Hugo's trying to attract his attention through me. I was in the very act of leaning across the table to tell him so when the spotlight changed—this time to the cold blue of moonlight on ice—and a girl stepped out on the platform, sheathed in a glittering, iridescent dress that seemed made of icicles. Its wearer was the girl of the Carlton Bar.

She came out along the runway towards us, her face set in the immobile mask of the mannequin, her supple body swaying as she walked. The glittering folds of her dress swirled about her feet. In that sinister, unearthly light her face shone with ghastly phosphorescence; her dark, haunted eyes were fixed and glassy.

She halted at the outer end of the runway, smiled the frozen, mechanical smile of her calling, and turned about, and as she turned, suddenly I saw the dark eyes flash to life in terror, the hands clutch at her breast as once before I had seen them, the painted lips part in a soundless cry. And then, softly from just behind me, there came a little sound, a gentle plop, and the girl on the runway jerked convulsively, reared up, and fell head-first like a shooting arrow, crashing on the ground at my feet.

With one forward leap I was on my knees beside her. She lay crumpled on her face, one arm doubled under her, the other flung wide, and I turned her gently on her back. Her wide eyes stared up at me, terrified; and then, even as I looked, she gave a little gasp, shuddered, mumbled something and lay still, the dark eyes still gazing up at me, fixed in that haunting look of fear.

Pandemonium

At the same instant I felt a hand on my shoulder, shaking me, and became conscious that all around me was a confused babel of sound, people crowding in, staring, horrified faces ringing me round, and on my knees beside me a plump, youngish man that I recognized as the assistant maitre d'hotel.

"What is it?" he asked hoarsely.

"I don't know," I answered stupidly. "She fell—right at my feet."

A woman behind us screamed: "She's dead! She's murdered!" That horrid cry steadied him. "Mesdames, messieurs!" he shouted. "It is nothing. She has fainted." But he was too late, for in that instant's hesitation pandemonium had broken out.

I scrambled to my feet and found Hugo beside me. "She's dead?" he asked abruptly, his face gray beneath the suntan.

"I don't know," I said again, but his words had brought me to my senses. "Something must be done—there's bound to be a doctor here."

I swung round on the maitre d'hotel. "A doctor, man!" I said urgently, but he only gaped at me, wringing his hands, and in a flash I had scrambled on a chair. "A doctor, quickly!" I yelled.

I looked despairingly out across the sea of upturned, staring faces. Every soul in the room, waiters and guests alike, seemed to have gathered in a solid mass round the spot where the girl lay. But as I looked I saw a man's figure, medium-sized, stocky, and dark-haired, detach itself from the throng and shoot up the three steps to the dais that led to the entrance. A second later another figure, smaller, red-haired, and wearing like the first a white mess-jacket sped after him.

I hesitated, uncertain whether they were waiters or guests, but hoping they were gone to fetch help, and as I paused, a hand was raised from the center of the seething crowd. I climbed down from my chair just as a sudden convulsion in the throng round the girl's body disgorged a small, stout man in sober black. He dropped on one knee beside the still shape. Then, very slowly, he straightened himself and with a kind of sick horror I saw him take out his handkerchief and spread it over the face.

He got to his feet, turning to the assistant maitre d'hotel. "She is dead. She has been shot. If one might suggest—the door should be closed at once and the police informed."

The other wrung his hands. "The scandal!" he moaned, and then sank to silence as a third man pushed through the crowd.

"The manager," said Hugo.

In one stride he was beside the orchestra and had snatched up the leaders megaphone. "Messiers, mesdames!" he called. "I regret to say there has been an accident and until the affair is straightened I must ask none of you to leave the building. You will oblige me by returning to your tables." He turned to his pallid assistant. "Order the doors to be closed at once," he said sharply. "When that is done, telephone to the commissaire of police from my office, informing him what has happened. I will have the girl taken there at once."

The little doctor murmured approvingly. "The witnesses too," he suggested gently. "These two gentlemen were, I think, nearest the girl when she fell."

The tall man turned to me inquiringly.

"Yes," I said, and felt a strong shudder run through me. "She died at my feet."
